Uganda releases Peace Corpsmen

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — President Idi Amin of Uganda today gave 111 American Peace Corps volunteers clearance to leave the country, apparently convinced they were really members of the Corps and not U.S. mercenaries en route to fight in an African civil war.

Amin's action in the Uganda capital of Kampala was announced here by U.S. embassy spokesman Gary Morley. U.S. diplomats and the State Department had interceded in their behalf since the mercenary Amin forced them to land in Kampala on Sunday.

"They do have clearance to leave," Morley said. "It came through around 3 p.m. (8 a.m. EDT). They are now looking for transport. They don't know where they're going and won't know until the transport is confirmed."

The East African Airways VC10 jet which flew the volunteers to Uganda Saturday returned empty to Nairobi Sunday. They had landed in Kampala on a refueling stop en route to a Peace Corps training camp in Zaire (former Belgian Congo) when Amin forced the plane to return under threat of being shot down by his tiny air force.

Morley said the Americans probably would go either to Nairobi, where hotel rooms have been booked for them, or to their original plane transfer point in Burundi. They have been staying in a Kampala Hotel, comfortable but under armed guard.

Morley did not give details on Amin's decision to release the Americans but President Joseph Mobutu of Zaire intervened today to tell Amin they really were Peace Corps volunteers and were en route to his country as they said they were. Diplomatic sources in Kampala said Mobutu sent a telegram today asking for their release.

Administration rules out rationing of gasoline

A 'VERY HARD LOOK'

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., tells a news conference today that Congress must take a "very hard look" at the possibility of breaking up functions of big oil companies. Jackson made the statement following disclosure of a government report suggesting that the structure of the industry had a major role in creating the current shortage of gasoline.

Mitchell to testify Tuesday before Senate Watergate panel

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Attorney General John N. Mitchell was interviewed by staff lawyers for the Senate Watergate committee today in preparation for his long-awaited public testimony starting Tuesday.

Mitchell, who was President Nixon's re-election campaign manager until two weeks after the Watergate bugging arrests June 17, 1972, appeared at mid-morning at the office of Fred D. Thompson, the committee's Republican counsel.

He appeared in good spirits and chatted freely with reporters, although he said little of substance.

Asked if his wife Martha would accompany him to the hearings Tuesday, Mitchell replied, "Well, we'll have to wait and see."

Asked if his testimony would implicate the President, he replied, "My testimony is tomorrow, not today."

Informed sources said Mitchell would not implicate Nixon, his former law partner in New York and an associate and friend of the President for many years.

Three meetings

In meeting with the committee staff last May 10, Mitchell was said to have repeated what he had told the federal grand jury April 20 — that he attended three meetings in early 1972 at which general intelligence-gathering, including bugging, was discussed but that he rejected the plans each time.

Other developments: —A spokesman for Archibald Cox, the special Watergate prosecutor, said that despite Nixon's refusal to turn over presidential documents to the Senate committee, Cox is proceeding on the assumption that he will have access to all presidential papers dealing with the case. The spokesman said that if Cox did not get what he asked, he would make a public announcement saying so.

—Columnist Jack Anderson said H. R. Haldeman, Nixon's former chief of staff, kept a list of Republican senators who displeased the President. Anderson said the list included Sens. Jacob K. Javits, N.Y.; Mark O. Hatfield, Ore.; Clifford Case Jr., N.J.; Charles M. McNamara, Md.; Richard W. Schweicker, Pa.; Charles H. Percy, Ill.; Lowell P. Weicker Jr., Conn., and Charles E. Goodell, N.Y. Weicker is a member of the Senate Watergate committee.

According to a source close to the Senate Committee, Mitchell said during his May interview with staff investigators that he did not believe Jeb Stuart Magruder, the deputy campaign director, would have gone ahead on his own in approving the bugging plans.

The source also said that Mitchell acknowledged encouraging payment of legal fees and support money to the original seven Watergate defendants in order to secure their silence.

Ousted White House Counsel John W. Dean III testified before the committee two weeks ago that Richard Moore, a White House aide, went to New York in February to try to get Mitchell's help in raising hush money. But the source said Mitchell told the committee staff that Moore merely asked him for help in establishing contact with the committee.

Members of both parties have called on Nixon to disclose, at a news conference or before the Senate committee, his knowledge of the bugging scandal.

Sale of U.S. wheat to Soviets blamed for high food prices

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congressional investigators today blamed the massive sale of U. S. wheat to the Soviet Union last year for the current high price of food for Americans, but excused the administration for making the deal.

The General Accounting Office (GAO), the investigative arm of Congress, said that the Agriculture Department did a poor job of arranging the sale, that large companies made excessive profits from it and that the government paid $300 million in unnecessary subsidies.

While criticizing the way the deal was handled, the GAO said it benefited the U.S. balance of payments, increased farm income, reduced surplus wheat stocks and put idle acreage back into production.

President Nixon announced the signing of the agreement July 8, 1972, to sell to the Soviet Union $750 million worth of domestic wheat over a three-year period.

The result of the Russian wheat sale, the GAO said, was that consumer costs for bread and flour-based products, beef, pork, poultry, eggs and dairy products increased sharply because of higher costs for feed grains and transportation facilities were severely disrupted "with attendant higher costs and shortages or delays in delivering certain supplies."

The GAO report noted that 440 million bushels of wheat worth $700 million was sold by grain dealers in the first two months after the announcement.

"The large sales of U. S. wheat to Russia and other exports in the summer of 1972 caused a dramatic rise in the price of U. S. wheat," the report said.

It said the price of wheat rose by nearly 50 per cent in those first two months after the deal and nearly doubled from $1.68 a bushel in July, 1972, to $3 this past May.

Since livestock and poultry depend on feed grains for their food, the increase in the price of wheat caused a proportional increase in the cost of meat and poultry, the GAO said.

The report said that weaknesses in the Agriculture Department's management of its wheat export subsidy program caused it to pay $300 million in subsidies to wheat exporters when no subsidies need have been paid.

"GAO believes many of these sales would have been made even with reduced subsidies and that Agriculture should have responded more rapidly to the available information and reduced or eliminated the subsidies sooner," the report said.

"U. S. grain exporters negotiated their sales to Russia at fixed prices below the $1.63 to $1.65 target price for hard winter wheat. Exporters sold large quantities at these prices with Agriculture's assurance that the subsidy program would continue to maintain export target prices."

"The massive amount sold to Russia and other buyers raised the domestic price of wheat. Hard winter wheat sold at Gulf port for $1.68 a bushel in July, brought $2.49 a bushel in September and even more later."

Twisters hit S. Dakota; flash flooding in Texas

By United Press International

Violent weather buffeted the northern Plains Sunday, bringing flash flooding to South Texas and sending tornadoes spinning over South Dakota.

Heavy thunderstorms dumped almost a half foot of rain over portions of the Texas coast and rain brought flash floods to portions of south Texas.

Heavy rains in the San Antonio area and the southwest Texas hill country resulted in flash flooding along several state highways and low water crossings. Storms continued to grumble over Texas early today, but flood threats eased slightly as the storms spread over a wider area.

Heavy thunderstorms pelted Arizona Sunday night, kicking up clouds of dust which reduced visibilities to near zero from southeastern Phoenix through the Superstition Mountains.

Other showers early today stretched from eastern New Mexico and the Texas Panhandle along the eastern slopes of the Rockies to the Dakotas and across northern Iowa and Minnesota to the western Great Lakes.

Tornadoes skipped across South Dakota late Sunday but there were no reports of injuries.

One twister was reported 50 miles west of Pierre and another struck 70 miles south of Pierre near Mission, S.D. Straight-line winds of 85 miles per hour buffeted Pierre Sunday.

Storms brought hail three quarters of an inch in diameter to Comstock, Neb., during another thunderstorm.

Hot weather plagued motorists in New York City Sunday as the 90 degree plus heat expanded steel beams, causing bridges to jam in the open position. Police reported extremely heavy traffic and a number of delays.

An air pollution alert, triggered Saturday in the Steubenville, Ohio, area by hot, stagnant air which trapped pollution particles, remained in effect today. The Ohio Environmental Protection Agency said there was a "good possibility" that pollution in the eastern Ohio area could worsen today.

Cool temperatures reigned in the northeastern Great Lakes area today and along most of the West Coast, but warm weather was the rule in much of the rest of the nation.

Assessed valuation of Pomona Valley cities up

LOS ANGELES — Increases in the assessed valuation of the Pomona Valley area, ranging from nearly 4 per cent in Pomona to more than 12 per cent in Walnut, were announced by Los Angeles County Assessor Philip E. Watson today.

City officials generally viewed the increases with satisfaction, noting that in most cases the estimated values were in excess of their own estimates.

The assessed valuations — approximately one-fourth of the actual market value of real estate property — are used as the basis for levying real estate taxes. Those taxes are the main source of income of local schools, city and county governments and assessment districts.

Countywide, the assessed valuation went up 3.69 per cent, from $19,963,900,736 in 1972 to $20,702,137,725 this year.

In Pomona, the percentage was slightly higher, with the total going from $176,175,551 to $182,928,090, showing the lowest increase in the area.

The largest percentage rise was chalked up by Walnut which went from $14,670,265 to $16,530,535. Close behind was San Dimas showing an increase of more than 10 per cent, from $30,610,769 to $34,542,188.

La Verne rose about 6 per cent, from $24,875,517 to $26,036,453, and Claremont gained about 5 per cent, from $48,169,845 to $50,991,968.

With the exception of Pomona city officials who said their estimates were "right on the nose," city officials seemed pleased.

La Verne City Manager George Caswell said Watson's assessment figures were about $1 million higher than his earlier conservative estimates. As a result, the city expects to collect approximately $20,000 more in real estate taxes during the coming year.

A similar situation prevailed in Claremont where the rise in assessed valuation apparently turned out to be twice as much as expected.

The assessed valuation includes reassessment of present property as well as new constructions and additions.

Aircraft sought off Santa Barbara

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (UPI) — A small Piper aircraft with five persons on board crashed shortly after midnight about five to seven miles off Goleta Point in the Santa Barbara Channel, the Coast Guard reported today.

A Coast Guard helicopter, the Coast Guard auxiliary vessel, Anacapa, a 515-foot merchant tanker, Phillips California, and a commercial tug, Pacific Ranger, searched for the aircraft which reportedly was attempting a radar approach to the Santa Barbara airport when it crashed.

The search was hampered by heavy fog with visibility near zero.

Sen. Jackson lashes out at big oil companies

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Deputy Secretary William E. Simon said today the administration ruled out any possibility of gasoline rationing to meet the current shortage.

Simon's statement, his strongest on the subject, came amid reports that President Nixon's Phase IV economic plan would include a rollback in prices for gasoline and other petroleum products.

Asked about persistent rumors of gasoline rationing, Simon said "absolutely not."

"I absolutely do not consider it even possible," he said. "We have a voluntary allocation system in place now that I believe is doing the job."

Sen. Henry W. Jackson, D-Wash., said Congress must take a "very hard look" at the possibility of breaking up functions of big oil companies.

Jackson made the statement at a news conference following disclosure of a government report suggesting that the structure of the industry had a major role in creating the gasoline shortage. He said a two-year study by the staff of the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) indicates clearly that vertical integration, concentration and market control had an important role in creating the shortage.

Program needed

"The report concludes," Jackson said, "that it is essential that the nation develop a program to ensure fair competition, and implies that this program may require divestiture of major oil company pipelines and refineries."

"The report also says that the big oil companies are indeed using the shortage to eliminate competition and to increase their relative shares in all three sectors of the industry — production, refining and marketing."

The FTC delivered the report to Sen. Jackson late last week at his request. The FTC did not, however, provide him with a legal section of the report which reportedly recommends anti-trust action be taken by the FTC against the nation's biggest oil companies.

Jackson said he was launching his own investigation into the situation. "The FTC report provides a strong case for divestiture of oil transportation from production and refining. Congress must take a new and very hard look at this question."

The report, Jackson said, marks the first time that an agency of the executive branch "has formally concluded that time honored and, until now, sacrosanct federal oil policies have benefited the major oil companies while working hardship on the average American and the independent small businessman."

Simon's office denied reports last week that the government already had printed rationing cards. At that time, a spokesman for Simon indicated that the administration still was considering a program of mandatory allocation to require gasoline firms and dealers to "share" in the shortage.

Sources said Sunday that administration officials also were considering the price rollback on gasoline as they draft the economic program that will follow the current price freeze. Nixon imposed the freeze June 13 for no longer than 60 days.

Mexican storm leaves 30 dead

GUADALAJARA, Mexico (UPI) — Authorities said today a pre-dawn thunderstorm Sunday killed at least 30 persons in villages around this tourist city.

Another three persons were listed as missing.

A state government spokesman said 25 persons were injured, several of them critically, when buildings collapsed on them.

The flood also left an estimated 1,500 persons homeless.

Authorities sent emergency relief to the villages, where a mass burial was scheduled for flood victims.

Death toll rises to 8 in Kingman

KINGMAN, Ariz. (UPI) — The death toll rose to eight Sunday from a fireball that mushroomed through the center of town from a burning railroad gas tanker. Richard Lee Williams, 47, a school principal who suffered second and third degree burns over 65 per cent of his body, died at Good Samaritan Hospital in Phoenix, Ariz.

Bill Casson, 52, was buried Sunday in the first funeral of a disaster victim. Of the 70 persons injured, six were listed in critical condition at hospitals in Phoenix and Las Vegas, Nev.

Casson was one of five volunteer firemen killed in the explosion. They were fighting a fire on a tank car of propane gas when the tanker erupted, sending a monstrous fireball blooming throughout the area, engulfing businesses, a highway and a crowd of people.

More funerals were scheduled for today and Tuesday.

State and federal investigators were reassembling the wreckage of the tank car, parts of which were hurled for a quarter of a mile. Authorities said a faulty safety valve may have played an important part in the disaster.

Phase IV may demand drop in gas price

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration's Phase IV economic program may include a rollback in prices for gasoline and other petroleum products, administration sources report.

The sources said Sunday administration officials are considering the rollback as they draft the program that will follow the price freeze President Nixon imposed June 13 and said would not continue more than 60 days.

Should the rollback be ordered, it would drop the price of gasoline at service stations in many parts of the country. It also would cover such products as home heating diesel and aviation fuels.

The gasoline price rollback is among a number of options being considered by the administration as it puts together Phase IV, said a Treasury Department official close to the government energy policy planning.

Like other prices, gasoline prices are frozen at the level of the first week in June. A rollback would force companies to reduce prices below current levels and, if a freeze is added, hold them there.

The Washington Star-News reported Sunday that a new freeze on petroleum products would be established at the prices that prevailed on May 15. Administration officials, however, termed this date "very speculative."

The administration sources said the oil and food industries, where prices have been rising the fastest in the economy, would be the first industries singled out for Phase IV coverage.

"There will be a number of announcements in the next 10 days or two weeks," one official said.

Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., who sponsored a bill giving Nixon the authority to order fuel supplies to energy-short areas, charged Sunday that the administration's voluntary program is a "colossal bust."

Nixon should have used the authority to force allocation of fuels, Eagleton said. Instead, Eagleton said, the administration had "fiddled around with its so-called 'voluntary program which has been a colossal bust.'" He said a mandatory program was necessary.

Eagleton said independent fuel distributors had not received a fair share of the available products. He said both farmers and trucking companies continued to have problems getting necessary fuel.

On Saturday, Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D., and Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., issued a statement accusing the major oil firms of deliberately creating a gasoline shortage to drive prices up and independent business. They proposed legislation "to break the back of the big oil's monopoly power."

Under that proposal, oil firms would be allowed to operate only in one of the four phases of the petroleum industry—production, refining, transportation or marketing. "At present," they said, "big oil controls petroleum products from the oil well to the gasoline pump—limiting competition and providing the opportunity for extensive abuse at the consumer's expense."

In another development, Sens. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., and Birch Bayh, D-Ind., said the oil companies are pushing for legislation to build the $3.5 billion trans-Alaska pipeline only because they want to sell oil to Japan.

"Why else would the big oil companies be pushing for a pipeline that runs through the most severe earthquake zone in North America, involves millions of gallons of oil spills each year along the Canadian and American West Coasts and delivers oil to the region of the country that needs it least?" they asked.

Backers of the bill say it is the quickest route for getting oil to the market.

'Significant step'

U.S., Czechs sign first agreements

PRAGUE (UPI) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers signed a new U.S.-Czech consular agreement today that his hosts called the first step towards contacts on other matters.

Rogers also described the agreement as a "very significant step" in improving relations between the two countries.

Rogers and Foreign Minister Bohuslav Choupek formally signed the agreement, the first of its kind between the United States and Czechoslovakia.

Rogers arrived Sunday from Helsinki to become the highest-ranking American to make an official visit to Czechoslovakia since World War II.

In a late-night walk along the cobblestone streets of the old part of Prague, Rogers appeared relaxed and chatty.

"I hope this visit and the consular convention will open a new chapter in our relations," Rogers told newsmen.

Choupek said the agreement "represents the first step in a broader U.S.-Czech contacts in various spheres of life."

The convention provides for an expansion of consular facilities on both sides and defines a specific time period in which consular officials must be allowed to get in touch with their nationals who have been detained by police in the other country.

Rogers stayed up late with his host, Choupek, touring old drinking caverns and listening to gypsy music.

Rogers and Choupek toasted each other with white wine in a 13th century wine cellar, the candle-lit "Golden Jug," and laughed as gypsies played "Oh Susanna" and "The Beer Barrel Polka" on their violins.

At one stage during Rogers' walk Sunday night, a young unidentified American woman walked up to him and said, "Hey, who are you? You've got a very familiar face."

Secret Service men hustled her away, her question unanswered.

Rogers also planned several other meetings into his 24-hour visit, among them talks with Premier Lubomir Strougal and with Gustav Husak, the Czech Communist party leader. Formal talks also were planned with Choupek.

NOT WORRIED ABOUT HIS HEART

He doesn't seem a bit worried, but this resident in the Finnish province of North Karelia, near the Russian border, lives in an area where more people drop dead from heart attacks than any other people in the world. The World Health Organization, alarmed at Finland's prominence at the top of heart disorders, is trying to do something about it.

European currency thrown into turmoil

LONDON (UPI) — Failure of government central banks to take action against the dollar slide threw European currency exchanges into turmoil today. With no sign of government intervention in the markets the U.S. dollar bounced up and down in value against other currencies.

It dropped to new lows in Tokyo and Hong Kong, but the European situation was confused in the extreme. Trading was reported very light, and what there was was erratic.

The market nervousness followed weekend reports from Basel, Switzerland that world bankers may move to defend the dollar and hints the United States may intervene in the world currency markets.

"Most dealers are waiting for the opening of American banks to give them a lead," said a dealer for Chase Manhattan bank in London.

The dollar opened stronger in most European money markets. But indecision and confusion pushed it lower by mid-day nearly everywhere.

Trading which a French dealer described as "erratic" pushed the dollar down in Paris, Amsterdam, Brussels, Stockholm and London.

Its price was fixed at a record low in Frankfurt of 2.2835 marks — above Friday's closing price of 2.26 marks, but the lowest fixing price on record.

A Frankfurt dealer described trading in the vital dollar-mark market as "normal now and not hectic at all."

S.D. schedules trip to Knotts and a movie day

SAN DIMAS — The recreation department has announced a movie day Tuesday and a trip to Knotts Berry Farm Thursday.

A variety of cartoons will begin at 1 p.m. Tuesday featuring the Disney film "Little League Mookiee." Popcorn and punch will be served at intermission. There will be no charge for the program. The films will be shown at the community building.

A bus will make pick-ups at the five San Dimas playground areas at noon and will return children at 3:30 p.m. Youngsters riding the bus should bring permission slips.

Children 8 through 15 may take part in the trip to Knotts Berry Farm. A fee of $1.50 is requested for transportation and admission to the Ghost Town area. The bus will leave City Hall at 9 a.m. and will return at 4 p.m.

Registration and permission slips may be obtained at the playground areas or at City Hall.

Airline admits contribution to Nixon was illegal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — American Airlines has acknowledged that it made illegal contributions of $75,000 to President Nixon's re-election effort. It charged that Nixon's personal lawyer, Herbert W. Kalmbach, solicited the money.

George A. Spater, the airlines chairman, said in a statement that he made cash contributions in five installments between November 1971 and March 1972.

"I knew Mr. Kalmbach to be both the President's personal counsel and counsel for our major competitor," Spater said. "I concluded that a substantial response was called for."

The period was before the April 7, 1972, deadline when the law compelling full disclosure of all campaign contributions and disbursements took effect.

'Better than controls'

Expert sees food rationing action

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An expert on world food production believes Americans soon may be forced to ration the food they eat in order to maintain exports and the value of the dollar abroad.

Lester R. Brown, an economist for the nonprofit Overseas Development Council, said Sunday domestic food rationing would be a better alternative to President Nixon's proposed controls on exports.

Brown, who directed international agriculture development for the Agriculture Department from 1966 to 1969, described the export controls as a "serious mistake."

He also predicted that domestic food prices will never return to the low levels of the 1960s. He said food would be in short supply around the world for the next year.

Food scarcity
"Beyond that, we may be faced with chronic global food scarcity for the foreseeable future," he said.

Brown made his comments in an interview published by U.S. News and World Report magazine.

He was critical of Nixon's order limiting soybean exports and the President's request to Congress for authority to impose broad controls on other U.S. farm exports.

"Those exports are keeping this nation economically afloat in a very real sense," Brown said. "A limit on U.S. farm exports would further weaken the dollar."

Imports limited

"It would certainly limit our ability to import the vast quantities of petroleum that we must have from abroad to keep U.S. business and industry going."

He said that as a result it may be necessary to ration food in the United States "in one form or another."

"We can't hold down farm exports without endangering the dollar or triggering serious energy shortages," Brown said. "In such circumstances, it may very well be that Americans will have to limit the intake of certain types of food, as some other countries are doing, in order to export agricultural commodities."

Against price ceilings

Brown said the administration should not impose price ceilings on beef, pork, poultry or eggs under Phase IV of the economic program. He said retail price ceilings coupled with the high price of feed would force many producers out of business.

"We run the risk of empty meat counters at various times and places in the months ahead," Brown said. "The imposition of ceiling prices treats the symptoms but ignores the causal factors—namely burgeoning world demand fueled by both rapid population growth and rising affluence."

In Rapid City, S.D., 15 Midwestern governors met to discuss the effects of the fuel shortage and price freeze on the food supply. The conference chairman, Gov. Robert Ray, a Republican from Iowa, said he would not ask for any resolutions on farm problems.

"I shy away from resolutions at such meetings as this because too often the participants act too hastily without the proper background," he said.

Cyclist injured on Mt. Baldy Rd.

MT. BALDY — Donald E. Bradshaw, 21, of 420 E. G St. Ontario, suffered cuts to the head and shoulders Sunday when his motorcycle when out of control on Mt. Baldy Road and turned over.

He was treated at San Antonio Community Hospital and released.

Bradshaw told Highway Patrol officers that he lost control of his vehicle while going 35 miles per hour.

Car rolls over, man, 21, injured

POMONA — A 21-year-old La Puente man was injured early Sunday morning when his automobile rolled over three times on the Pomona Freeway near Dudley Street.

Henry N. Chavez was westbound on the freeway when his steering wheel locked. The car hit the shoulder of the road, and went out of control.

Chavez was treated at Pomona Valley Community Hospital and later released.

About people

Dianna Rigg marries

LONDON (UPI) — Actress Diana Rigg, the shapely Mrs. Emma Peel in "The Avengers" television series, married Menachen Gueffen, an Israeli artist, last Friday, she revealed Sunday.

It is the first marriage for Miss Rigg, 34, who said less than two weeks ago in a magazine interview she saw no reason for getting married. She said in the same interview that she would like to have a baby but didn't quite know how to manage it as a single woman.

Miss Rigg is on leave of absence from the British National Theatre and will appear soon in a new American television comedy series called The Diana Rigg Show.

Totie Fields improves

NEW YORK (UPI) — Totie Fields' condition improved Sunday and her agent said he was hopeful the popular comedienne could leave the hospital by Friday.

Miss Fields, 40, has been in Polyclinic Hospital with a collapsed left lung and three broken ribs since a midtown auto accident Thursday night.

Her husband, George Johnston, and upstate resort owner George Gilbert were also injured when their taxi slammed into another automobile in Manhattan. Johnston was in good condition and expected to leave the hospital before Friday. Gilbert, owner of the Raleigh Hotel in South Fallsburgh, N.Y., was still in "poor" condition in the intensive care ward.

Simon burglarized

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Millionaire industrialist Norton Simon reported Sunday burglars had stolen $90,000 in securities and foreign currency from his 12th floor office safe by prying the three-foot wide vault from a concrete wall.

Authorities said the burglars removed the safe to the basement of the building and broke into it, and a smaller safe located inside, with crowbars and an acetylene torch.

A "sizeable" amount of foreign currency in the smaller safe was left behind, officers said. Company president Robert McFarland discovered the theft Saturday night, authorities said.

Ellington honored

NEW YORK (UPI) — The French government Sunday bestowed the French Legion of Honor on Duke Ellington for his "outstanding contribution to the world of jazz and to the cultural values of today's world."

By special executive order of Georges Pompidou, president of France, Ellington received the honor in special ceremonies at the residence of the French Consul General on Fifth Avenue.

Jacques Kesciusko-Morizet, French Ambassador to the United States, said his government "desired to pay tribute to the dedication of this great American."

N. Viet 'pressure'

COVINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — The national commander of the American Legion says the United States should apply military pressure to North Vietnam. It is necessary to get information on Americans still missing in action.

"If necessary, military pressure should be brought to bear to force the North Vietnamese to let our investigation teams go in there (North Vietnam)," "They need to go back into the interior and check around all back there."

"The families of the missing in action should be given some kind of satisfactory answer so they feel everything humanly possible is being done for their men," Matthews said.

Congressmen finish Alaska pipeline tour

ANCHORAGE, ALASKA (UPI) — Six congressmen viewed mountains of 48-inch pipe, talked with oilmen on a three-day tour, and then flew back to Washington Sunday ready to proceed with a bill authorizing a trans-Alaska oil pipeline.

But in Rapid City, S.D., Gov. William G. Milliken urged the federal government to delay a final decision on the trans-Alaska oil pipeline in favor of the trans-Canadian oil line. Milliken said the oil is needed most—"east of the Rockies."

The lawmakers on tour in Alaska, members of the House Interior and Insular Affairs Committee, made stops along the 800-mile route of the planned pipeline and gathered information for legislation intended to remove obstacles that have delayed construction of the pipeline for three years.

At the proposed pipeline's south terminus at the Port of Valdez, the congressmen saw 40 miles of pipe, stacked three years ago before the project was stalled with court suits and criticism from environmentalists.

Giant balloon breaks tie lines

LINCOLN, N.Y. (UPI) — A balloon nine stories tall being prepared for a trans-Atlantic flight broke loose from its moorings and descended to earth 80 miles away Sunday in the hilly terrain of western New York state.

Operators of the balloon were filling it with helium for a test flight Saturday when four lines disconnected accidentally, sending the 50-pound nylon bag skyward. The gondola was not connected, so no passengers were launched.

The balloon, the "Yankee Zephyr," was spotted by Elizabeth Waldron of Lincoln, who told sheriff's deputies it came down about quarter mile from her home.

Operator Bob Short was preparing the Yankee Zephyr for a solo trans-Atlantic balloon trip from Bar Harbor, Maine, to France later this year. Although there have been three previous attempts to cross the Atlantic, none has succeeded.

Short said plans for the trip are still on, although he said the date of departure is now indefinite.

Band boosters name officers

CHINO—Harold Nelms was re-elected president of the Chino High School Band Boosters at a recent meeting.

Other officers include Lee Eisher, vice president; P. B. Byington, secretary; Phyllis Stewart, treasurer; Richard DeVore, activities; Lois Deseran, membership; and Dennis Rodda, publicity.

This will be the third terms for Nelms and Miss Stewart.

The organization also voted to hold a series of fund-raising activities during the summer and school year to pay for the recently purchased band uniforms. During the past two years the club has raised $23,000 to purchase the 140 uniforms.

Some of the activities will include a monthly paper drive, a Las Vegas night, the third annual Chino Band review, a Spanish dinner, the Chino High School banquet, and a fireworks stand before the Fourth of July.

The club will meet July 16 at 7:30 p.m. in the band room of the school.

Pipeline proponents hovered over the lawmakers at each stop, beginning with a breakfast indoctrination by the Alaska Pipeline Education Committee in Anchorage, where Gov. William A. Egan and other state officials argued for the pipeline.

In addition to Dellenback, the tour members were Reps. Don Young, R-Alaska, Keith Sebelius, R-Kan., Alan Steinhilber, R-Tex., David Towell R-Nev., and Tony Wom Pat, D-Guam.

N.Y. power fails; voltage cut back

NEW YORK (UPI) — A 600 megawatt generator servicing the New York metropolitan area failed today as temperatures again soared toward the 90s and Consolidated Edison cut voltage by 5 per cent.

A spokesman for the utility said the cutback occurred at 10:50 a.m. when the temperature stood at 87 degrees.

Con Ed also reported power knocked out to 6,000 customers in Queens county when five feeder cables failed. Crews were attempting to repair the cables.

The spokesman said the immediate cause of the failure of the Arthur Kill number three generator on Staten Island which went out of service at 8 a.m. had not been determined.

Two injured in accidents in Chino

CHINO — An Upland man and a 16-year-old Chino resident were injured in separate traffic accidents near here Saturday.

Ignacia Garcia Toscano, 24, of 13th Street, Upland, suffered multiple facial lacerations when his car struck a tree while he was trying to avoid a collision with another car.

He was treated at Chino General Hospital and later released.

The accident occurred on Euclid Avenue near Edison Avenue.

The other accident took place when a motorcycle ridden by Robert A. Townzen, 16, of 4202 Val Verde Ave., Chino, ran into the front of a car driven by John E. Rodelo, 30, of 13085 Fifth St., Chino.

Townzen was treated at San Antonio Community Hospital and released. Rodelo suffered no injuries.

Rodelo was northbound on Soquel Canyon Road when Townzen came around a curve on the wrong side of the road. Both drivers swerved into the the southbound lane to avoid a head-on collision, but Townzen's vehicle struck the right fender of Rodelo's car.

Man falls from cliff, hurts head

AZUSA — A young Long Beach man was reported in critical condition today after falling 75 feet down a cliffside in Islip Canyon north of here.

John Charles Hoover, 19, suffered a head injury and was in Glendora Community Hospital where he was taken by sheriff's helicopter after he fell.

Deputies said Hoover was hiking about one mile west of Highway 39 when the accident occurred. Mountaineers of the San Dimas Mountain Rescue Team carried him from the canyon to the highway where he was picked up by helicopter.

During the rescue, James Hunter, a member of the rescue team, suffered a sprained ankle when he slipped on a wet rock and fell. He was treated at the hospital.

Tallahassee was selected as capital of the Territory of Florida in 1923.

A TIME FOR GIFTS — C. T. Richardson, retiring general manager of the Progress-Bulletin, holds the box of matched golf clubs he received from the Donrey Media Group Sunday night. Shown with him are his wife, Jean, Bob Bush, seated, the new general manager of the P-B, and Fred Smith, executive vice president of Donrey Media in charge of Western properties. The presentation was part of an awards banquet for employees of the Progress-Bulletin held at the Diamond Bar Country Club.

Richardson receives tribute

P-B employees honored for service

DIAMOND BAR — Ninety-four employees of the Progress-Bulletin were honored Sunday night at the Diamond Bar Country Club for five years service with Donrey Media Group.

The occasion also served to pay tribute to Charles T. Richardson, who retired June 30 as general manager of the newspaper after 40 years of service.

All of the employees were presented with service pins by the Donrey Media Group, the parent company of the Progress-Bulletin Publishing Co.

Richardson, who along with his father, the late A. T. Richardson, had owned the newspaper from 1905 to 1967, expressed his appreciation to his co-workers, several of whom had been with the company as long as he and without whose help, he said, the newspaper could not have grown to its present position.

Bob Bush, who succeeded Richardson as general manager, and Fred Smith, executive vice president of the Donrey Media Group in charge of Western properties, both pointed out that the most important asset of the Progress-Bulletin is the loyalty and dedication of its employees.

Those who received pins for five years of service include:

Joe Gendron, George Adams, Jeanne Bryant, Jack Burson, John Daniel, Jim De Voss, Lenore Wallace, Joe Firman, Sid Fridkin, Jim Fulton.

Bill Langley, Bob Nagey, Mary Remillard, Yvonne Robertson, L. T. Rogers, Tony Navarro, Maxine Anderson, Doris Chartier, Dorothy Kern, Margaret Wilson.

S.B. sheriff 'serious' after heart attack

SAN BERNARDINO — San Bernardino County Sheriff Frank Bland, 58, is listed in serious condition at San Bernardino Community Hospital this morning after suffering a heart attack Thursday morning at his San Bernardino home, according to a sheriff's office spokesman.

Bland, according to the sheriff's office, was stricken with an "acute coronary" early Thursday morning and taken to the hospital by his family. He was placed in the hospital's intensive care unit where he remains this morning.

The sheriff's office spokesman said that Bland became ill Wednesday evening. Since his attack, doctor's report the sheriff is "progressing well."

Undersheriff Floyd Jones has taken over Bland's duties until he can return, but he would need to rest for a time after his release from the hospital.

Suspect still sought in S. B. slaying

SAN BERNARDINO — San Bernardino County sheriff's homicide detectives are still seeking Robert Eugene Anderson, 25, of San Bernardino this morning after suffering a heart attack Thursday morning at his San Bernardino home, according to a sheriff's office spokesman.

Anderson has been sought since the Wednesday night fatal shooting of Lynn Carey Barnes of 10168 Felipe St., Montclair, in a telephone booth on the corner of Del Rosa Street and Del Rosa Avenue in San Bernardino.

Deputies reported no new leads in their search for Anderson, who allegedly had been in a family dispute with the victims. Anderson is Barnes' brother-in-law.

Deputies reported that Barnes had experienced car trouble on Wednesday night and had stopped to make a phone call to a service station for help. As he was talking on the telephone inside the phone booth he was hit by a shotgun blast. The suspect was seen jumping back into a car after firing the fatal shot.

The .12 gauge shotgun believed used in the fatal shooting was recovered in a nearby chicken coop.

Butcher knife used by robber

POMONA — A man armed with a butcher knife robbed Marion E. Stevenson at the Cornet Store, 2123 S. Garey Ave., Sunday afternoon. The bandit was described as a Negro about 19, 5 feet 9, and 140 pounds. He wore a multi-color cap, light shirt with vertical stripes and dark-blue trousers.

The four most populous countries are The People's Republic of China, India, the Soviet Union and the United States.

Bar broken into; man is arrested

ONTARIO — A 42-year-old Ontario man is being held in West End jail this morning for investigation of a burglary at Lobo's Bar at 5050 Mission Blvd. early Sunday morning.

Edward Murieta Lisanco, Sheriff's deputies said who listed his address as a trailer court behind 5050 Mission Blvd., was taken into custody by Ontario and Montclair police officers responding to a burglary report at the bar about 2:34 a.m. Deputies said that Lisanco was found inside the bar near a juke box that had been broken into.

Deputies said police were tipped off to the burglary by a resident who lives near by who said he saw the suspect break into the bar. Minutes after the call, police and deputies surrounded the bar, finally going inside to arrest the suspect. Deputies said the suspect apparently used a crow bar to break a window, gaining entrance to the building.

152nd winner in sweepstakes

Charlotte Nelson of 621 Richbrook Ave., Claremont, became the 152nd winner in the Progress-Bulletin's TV Week Sweepstakes on Friday. Her prize was $10.

A total of $3,145 has been awarded in the contest.

Other winners last week included F. A. McKee of 772 W. Ninth St., Claremont, $25; Marvin Baas of 1272 Shelley Ave., Upland, $10; Raymond Elkins Jr. of 9706 Ramona Ave., Montclair, $10.

Cyclist, 11, 'poor' after crash

ONTARIO — An 11-year-old Ontario boy is in poor condition this morning at San Antonio Community Hospital with multiple injuries suffered in a car-bike accident Sunday evening on G Street east of Vineyard.

Troy Alan Brasel of 1843 Plaza Serena, Ontario, suffered a massive head injury and other injuries about 6:36 p.m. Sunday when his bicycle was struck by a car driven by Michael A. Pendarvis, 18, of 7797 Vineyard Ave., police said.

Police said that the youth apparently was riding with a group of bicyclists eastbound in the westbound lanes of G Street. The youth, according to police reports, was riding in the center lane of the highway and swerved his bike head on into the car.

Police said Pendarvis was not cited.

Ontario man, juvenile held in burglary

ONTARIO — A 20-year-old Ontario man and a 15-year-old juvenile are being held for questioning by Ontario police investigating the burglary of a furniture store warehouse at 528 W. Emporia St. Saturday night.

Police said burglars apparently broke into the warehouse owned by Tobias Furniture Co., and removed sofas, nightstands, chow tables, and a love seat and chair valued to $968 wholesale. Police said they arrested the suspects and recovered the stolen furniture in front of a home at 514 W. Emporia St.

Booked in West End jail this morning on suspicion of burglary is David Adrian Avila of 514 W. Emporia St., and the juvenile.

Police said it appeared the burglars pried the paneling loose from a storeroom door to gain entrance to the building. They then hand-carried the stolen furniture to the home, but were seen by a worker in a nearby business.

Arsonists set blaze

POMONA — Firemen believe arsonists set a blaze which caused $2,000 damage to a vacant house at 293 Royal Coach Ave. Saturday.

The front door to the house was open when firemen arrived and a fire was burning in the living room. It burned a hole in the floor and spread up the south walls of the room.

A faulty light in the center of the room of Maggi's, 197 Pomona Mall East caused a small fire Sunday afternoon in the shop. No damage was reported other than the light fixture.

When care means everything

There are times when care, and care alone, means everything.

That's why at Rose Hills we are not just another mortuary. We stress the importance of care and understanding above all else.

It was a care for beauty that led to the creation, more than a half century ago, of the world's most naturally beautiful memorial park.

It was an understanding of people's needs that led us to establish a mortuary. We offer every needed service — mortuary, cemetery, chapels, flower shops, mausoleums and crematory — all at one convenient location.

Care... and understanding. At Rose Hills, we think they mean a lot.

Trial starts for suspect in 10 murders

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (UPI) — A 25-year-old college dropout, charged with the slaying of 10 persons, goes on trial today in the first of two mass murder trials set for this quiet Pacific Coast community.

Herbert W. Mullin pleaded innocent and innocent by reason of insanity to the 10 murdercounts filed in February.

He is charged with killing a 72-year-old fisherman, a mother and her two young sons, a suspected marijuana dealer and his wife, and four youths whose bodies were found in a crude mountain shack.

Mullin was also named the chief suspect in the stabbing death of a priest in a confessional in neighboring Santa Clara County.

The second mass murder suspect, Edmund Emil Kemper III, 24, a 6-foot-9, 280-pounder, is charged with slaying eight women, including his mother. His trial date has not yet been set.

District Attorney Peter Chang said the defense and the judge in the Mullin trial agreed to merge the guilt and sanity phases of the trial for the first time in the state's legal history.

Normally, evidence regarding a defendant's sanity is given at a separate hearing after the criminal trial.

Chang said that if a jury finds the defendant had "diminished capacity," then he cannot be found to have committed a crime with malice and deliberation, requirements for a first-degree murder conviction.

Superior Court Judge Charles Franich granted defense attorney James Jackson unlimited challenges to prospective jurors. The prosecution has listed between 40 and 50 witnesses to be called.

Right to privacy upheld in ruling

NEW YORK (UPI) — Showers, toilets and sauna bath at permanent residency hotels that cater to one sex are now exempt from laws prohibiting sex discrimination in public accommodations.

Human Rights Commissioner Eleanor Holmes Norton said Sunday that "in granting these exemptions, the commission based its decision of bona fide considerations of public policy such as the constitutional right to privacy."

Women urge that funds for sterilizing be cut

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Fourteen women's religious and population control organizations, most of them supporters of family planning and birth control, today called for an end of spending of funds for sterilizing minors.

"We deplore the recent incidents of sterilization, an irreversible operation, of teenage girls in Montgomery County, Alabama," the groups said.

Noting that the issues involved in the sterilization incidents were now before the courts, the groups said that

Canadians captured June 28 Viet Cong holding 2 truce members

CANADIANS — VIET CONG SAIGON (UPI) — The Viet Cong admitted today it is holding two Canadian officers who disappeared 10 days ago, and the Canadian truce delegation said "we will not be satisfied until they are returned to us."

A press officer for the Provisional Revolutionary Government (PRG, the formal name for the Viet Cong) said Capt. Ian Patten of Toronto and Fletcher Thomson are alive and well.

The PRG accused the South Vietnamese government of ordering all-day artillery fire on areas where the two Canadians were being searched for. Officials in Saigon termed this a slander.

10 days of talk But the painstaking 10-day negotiations over the release of the two officers appeared to be about to succeed.

Canadians concerned for the safety of the two officers have been close-mouthed about the delicate negotiations with the PRG.

The agonizing slowness of the release negotiations, as correspondents have pieced the story together since June 28 when Patten and Thomson disappeared, seemed to be caused by:

—Disagreement over who was responsible. Canadian authorities have maintained the two officers were simply touring their area of responsibility; the Viet Cong communique said today the two "went along with two Vietnamese, infiltrating into the liberated area without a PRG liaison officer... (and without) advance notification."

—Some concern by the PRG officers on the spot that the Canadians, on a previous visit to the area where they were captured, had inadvertently disclosed the location of the Viet Cong unit they visited, since their visit was followed by a heavy government attack.

Statement made Today, Capt. Phung Nam, press officer with the PRG truce delegation at Saigon's Tan Son Nhut airport said in a telephoned statement:

"Our delegation has just received the information that in a locality in Long Khanh Ba Ria province on June 28 there were two persons who said they were Canadians in the ICCS (International Commission of Control and Supervision) team in Xuan Loc (40 miles northeast of Saigon).

"These two persons went along with two Vietnamese (apparently their driver and interpreter), infiltrating into the liberated area without a PRG liaison officer."

"Because they had received no advance notification from their superiors, the local administration thought that these two persons were sham ICCS members and held them for investigation..."

Encouraging A Canadian delegation spokesman said, "On the face of it, the PRG statement is encouraging, particularly since it gives us grounds to hope that our two officers are alive. But we will not be satisfied until they are returned to us."

The Viet Cong later issued an additional statement saying it had word that "Republic of Vietnam artillery will open fire from July 9 to July 14 every day from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m. on the designated places that the search team would conduct their activities."

Bui Bao Truc, a spokesman for the South Vietnamese government, told the daily press briefing, "The Viet Cong delegation charged that our forces launched an operation into the region where the two Canadians are believed to be located. This is unfounded. "There is no government ground operation in this area. The statement slandered the Viet Cong. The statement also showed that Viet Cong forces did not keep them."

Air mail and 'slow boat'

Parcel post can now go to mainland China

WASHINGTON (UPI) — There now is parcel post delivery service between the United States and mainland China.

The U.S. Postal Service announced the start of the service Sunday.

Spokesmen said parcels mailed from the United States would be sent to Hong Kong and thence to China's Kwangchow post office. Packages mailed from China will arrive at either the Oakland or San Francisco post offices.

Air mail packages may be sent to China at a cost of $2.15 for four ounces or less and 75 cents for each additional four ounces. Surface rates—presumably the "slow boat to China" route—are cheaper, $1.30 for the first two pounds, 40 cents for each additional pound or fraction of a pound.

Parcels may not weigh more than 44 pounds and may not be bigger than six feet long and around combined. Guns, narcotics and poisonous drugs cannot be mailed and each parcel destined for China must clearly spell out "People's Republic of China."

No abbreviations are allowed. Import permits are not required by persons in the United States receiving packages from China if the value of the parcel is 50 yuan—about $25—or less, and if the total value of all such parcels sent during the course of a year does not exceed 300 yuan.

Claremont public hearing

14 empty houses may be cleaned up

CLAREMONT — A public hearing on "nuisance abatement" at 14 empty houses, most of them in southwest Claremont; pay raises for City Manager Keith Mulrooney and department heads; and a recommendation that the city and the Southern California Rapid Transit District continue their experimental bus service to the Village will be considered by the City Council Tuesday night.

The council hopes to use Neighborhood Youth Corps workers to clean up weeds and unsightly conditions at 579 Aurora Drive, 702 W. Arrow Hwy., 310 Carleton Ave., 530 Carleton Place; 569 and 626 Geneva Ave., 606 and 478 S. Mountain Ave., 110 Princeton Ave., 615 W. San Jose Ave., 728 Vassar St. 417 Cucamonga Ave., 420 West Point Drive, and 310 Annapolis Drive if owners do not improve their properties.

Human Resources Coordinator Walter "Pete" West has reported that Claremont has been allotted 51 summer youth positions, which he said will be filled from applicants living in the city.

The council will adopt a resolution establishing a salary schedule and rates for classified and unclassified employees for the 1973-74 fiscal year.

Jack R. Gilstrap in a letter to Mulrooney reported that a sampling of riders on Bus 195 brought out an average of 491 passengers for a six-day week, with $89.45 total revenue.

Gilstrap said that the staff recognized that the 90-day period was not sufficient to provide a fair and equitable test, and would recommend consideration be given to continued service.

The city's subsidy agreement ends July 14. The council will also consider the following:

—An application from Mrs. C. T. Stover for annexation to the city of about 20 acres to aid the city in extending Claremont Boulevard north from Foothill Boulevard to its junction with Padua Avenue.

—A petition from adults and children living on Pembroke and Loyola courts asking the status of plans of the proposed park at Radcliffe Drive and Mills Avenue.

—A letter from County Supervisor Pete Scharbarum advising that the board has budgeted $766,000 to design plans and improve Arrow Highway from Grove Avenue to Pomona to Indian Hill Boulevard in Claremont with construction scheduled to start this November. Scharbarum said that necessary funds have been budgeted for improvement of Arrow Highway from Huntington Drive to the county line.

—An agreement between Pomona and Claremont on the landscaping and street lighting for Arrow Highway between Orange Grove Avenue and Indian Hill Boulevard. According to the proposed agreement, Pomona agrees to pay Claremont 65 per cent of the costs of the project constructed by Claremont in Pomona, and grants permission to Claremont to do the work in Pomona.

—An ordinance prohibiting golf playing in city parks.

Colorado avalanche kills climber; partner hurt

VAIL, Colo. (UPI) — An avalanche rumbled down a 14,000 foot mountain Sunday bashing one mountain climber against the rocks and killing him and smashing the hip and a leg of his climbing partner.

The dead man was identified as Richard Boss, 56, of Littleton, Colo. His partner, Ronald Dillon, 17, of Colorado Springs, suffered a fractured hip and broken upper leg and was rescued eight hours after the accident.

Dr. Thomas Steinberg, the summit county coroner, said Boss died of head injuries. His body was found beneath four feet of hard-packed snow.

On a nearby 13,272-foot peak, two other climbers were rescued late Sunday by a two-man party from the county sheriff's office. The climbers found themselves isolated on a sheer cliff as they descended the peak. Neither was injured.

Ranger Ed Browning said Dillon and Boss were members of a six-man Colorado Mountain Club party. All were experienced climbers.

Browning said there was nothing the two could do when the avalanche caught them.

The accident occurred about 8 a.m. but was not reported until after noon when one of the climbers descended the mountain and walked into Vail.

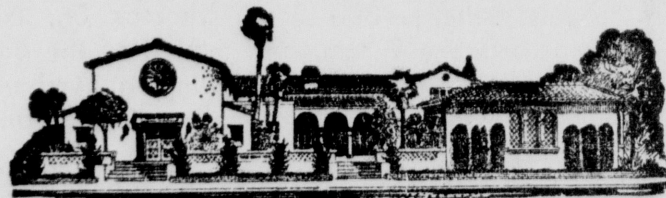

Dillon, the son of a retired serviceman was evacuated by a St. Anthony Hospital helicopter to the Vail Medical Clinic. He was then transferred to Fitzsimons Army Medical Center in Denver.

Hot surprise

BURITON, England (UPI) — Rod Tyrell surprised his fellow players in a cricket match Sunday when a fast ball ignited a box of matches in his pocket. Tyrell said he was unhurt.

5-year battle

Millionaire says he's not bankrupt

RENO, Nev. (UPI) — Charlie Steen, America's first uranium millionaire, now has three ambitions—staying out of bankruptcy, making another mining strike, and learning to play the piano.

The leathery little prospector, who once controlled 90 per cent of the nation's uranium production, has spent the past five years battling efforts to declare him bankrupt.

"I'm not bankrupt," said Steen, 63, relaxing in old Army khakis and scuffed brown field boots in a chair in the huge, vaulted living room of his $2 million mansion overlooking Washoe Lake outside Reno.

"We pay our creditors and we aren't living on day-old bread and beans," he said. "But we live more quietly."

The Steen family, surviving on royalties in his wife's name and income from trust funds set up for his four sons, still maintains a standard of living well above average.

But they no longer throw parties for 300 people, have lost their Arabian horses, and Steen's wife, "M.L.," keeps up the 20 or so rooms in the house.

"Almost every day, I walk up the mountain behind the house," said Steen, who gestures and stabs with his hands and talks in staccato bursts between long pauses because of a head injury suffered last year in a mining accident. "My dogs keep me company."

A hefty dalmation named Jalisco stationed itself between Steen and his visitor and never moved more than a few feet away during a tour of paneled bedrooms, marble bathrooms and a kitchen fit for a catering firm. "He's far from friendly," warned Steen.

As he led the way through the house, the former field geologist who struck it rich by discovering uranium in southeastern Utah in 1952 pointed to mementoes of his career.

Bronzed boots he was wearing when he found Mi Vida mine sat by the fireplace, a piece of the drill core from the same mine rusted in the fireplace, and the jeep he was driving when he found Mi Vida was parked near the barn. In a closet upstairs, Steen has collected every article ever written about him.

"I'm a reconnaissance geologist," he said. "That's what I've been doing these years. I'm happy with a pickup truck in the hills."

He said he was spending as much time as the bankruptcy battle permitted at his profession, mapping and test drilling several mining sites in California. He said he has found what will someday become a profitable copper mine.

"That's where I got hit in the head," he said.

Steen was struck by a runaway piece of drilling equipment 18 months ago. After brain surgery to remove a blood clot, he was released and returned home.

"When my family brought me home, they didn't know if I would be an idiot or what. I couldn't speak a word of English, but when I got home, I started singing in Spanish to my dog."

Recovery has been slow. "When you ask me a question, it may take four or five minutes, but I'll answer. I know what I want to say, but the words don't come out. I'm in good shape physically. I can out-walk my sons. There's no damage to my mind, but it's hard to talk—especially when I get excited."

Steen his eyebrows continually arching behind his wire frame glasses, said he will battle the long bankruptcy case all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court if necessary.

DO WANT ADS WORK?

DO MICE LIKE CHEESE?

The answer to both questions is a roaring "yes".

Why mice prefer cheese over all other types of food is something we two-legged creatures will never understand.

Why Want Ads work, at a lower cost and greater effectiveness than any other form of advertising, is easy to understand. It is because Want Ads provide people-to-people communication, bringing buyer and seller together.

If you've never used a Want Ad, you have a pleasant surprise in store for you.

THE AREA'S MAJOR NEWSPAPER

Gals helping revive fading tattoo trade

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — Big Ed was watching the topless dancer with the long tattooed on her rump.

"When I take my clothes off I look like the Sunday comics," said the burly ex-Navy chief who took to riding motorcycles when he quit going to sea.

Big Ed is a member of a fading fraternity of tattooed sailors, a tradition that began in another century when Danish seafarers carved mermaids on their bodies and rubbed coal dust in the design, symbols to tide them safely home.

He remembers how much it hurt when "painless Nell" up in Norfolk, Va., needed a rooster on his belly and how in Hong Kong "you could get an eagle that looked like you could pull th feathers out."

On the other hand, Tona Berry, the girl dancing at the Pump Room in Orlando is a member of that growing sisterhood of tattoo parlor patrons who were more inspired by Janis Joplin, some socialites in San Francisco and other swingers who think the adornments are sexy or kinky or link them to their mates.

Tona, a secretary in San Bernardino before moving to Florida and going topless, also has a black rose on the inside of her thigh and her boyfriend's name underneath her bikini. Like most girls who have gone under the needle, she had difficulty explaining her motives.

"I just like them on the walls and I wanted them on me," said Tona, who is 21 and the mother of a four-year-old daughter. "I like them. I love them. I think they're sexy."

While West Coast tattooers have been drawing plenty of attention with their work on women, sailors on the eastern seaboard are hard put to find someone to decorate their skin.

Under pressure from health departments and Navy doctors, many states have outlawed the practice, including Florida, Virginia and Connecticut—all with large Naval installations—and New York City.

"Painless Nell" and "old man Coleman" were put out of business on main street in Norfolk more than 10 years ago. Paul Rogers, a long-time practitioner in Jacksonville, packed up his needle and moved to Rhode Island when Florida outlawed tattoo parlors two years ago. None are listed in the phone books of such cities as New Orleans or Atlanta.

Some health officials fear dirty tattoo needles spread hepatitis and could cause infections. Parents' organizations have helped close down some parlors that were operating on minors. Another frequent criticism is that sailors are often under the influence of alcohol when they decide to get needled.

Leonard St. Clair, a cripple confined to a wheel chair, had been tattooing for 41 years in carnivals, circuses and downtown Tampa before the Florida law put him out of business.

"Drunk—Forget It—Period." I doctors' wives, lawyers' wives, do?" ain't tattooed on (a drunk) in 25 years and I made the young ones show me a draft or ID card to prove they were 18 or older. I've tattooed tens of thousands of people and I made sure they all knew it ain't gonna come off.

On the West Coast, however, sailors, socialites and bicycle gangs share the services of a number of tattooers from Tahiti Felix in Spokane, Wash., to Doc Webb, near San Diego's water front.

While Lyle Tuttle specializes on girls and women in San Francisco, Tahiti Felix says he's also getting more female customers. But he doesn't know why.

"I guess it's just a new mode, like men with beards," Felix said.

Webb who runs one of the four parlors in San Diego, advertises "every day is ladies day" and says he averages about 80 to 90 females a month.

"There's one sitting here now," Webb said in a telephone interview. "She wants a little devil on her arm."

"We've got a lot of society women through the years—doctors' wives, lawyers wives, Navy officers' wives. They usually get them on their shoulder blade or their hips or high on the leg. They like to go to parties and show them off."

"Today the girls are getting them anywhere, but I don't work on them unless my wife is here or unless they have another woman with them."

Webb, who also has been in the business more than 40 years, is a former commercial artist who did tattoo work in Los Angeles, Vallejo, Calif., Alaska and Seattle before settling in San Diego 13 years ago.

With women accounting for 20 per cent of his business today, Webb says the sailor trade has declined. "It's a different Navy than we used to have," he said. "It used to be a drunken brawling Navy and when you went into town on shore leave you were expected to get drunk, get a tattoo and get a girl in bed. Today most of these kids are college kids and they're nice kids."

One of the most popular tattoos today is Jesus Christ, Webb said, while a few years ago the favorites were comic characters such as Mickey Mouse or the Pink Panther.

Big Ed is not so proud of his tattoos any more, particularly since his new wife, a Navy nurse, disapproves.

"She's kind of an aristocrat and doesn't like them much," he said. "But what can you do?"

Damage set at $90.5 million in oil field blaze

BEIRUT (UPI) — Part of the American-owned Al-Nafurah oil field in Libya caught fire last Friday and burned for several hours, causing an estimated $90.5 million damage before the flames were extinguished, the official Syrian Arab News Agency (SANA) reported from Tripoli.

Two engineers—one Lebanese and one British—and a Libyan driver were injured in the fire, the agency said.

"Flames were about to blow up the oil station of the field, which produces 140,000 barrels per day," the agency said. It said the field is owned by American Oil Company Amoseas.

Couples announce wedding plans

Schmicking-Zebley
Miss Janine E. Schmicking and Ronald M. Zebley are planning a wedding next summer.

The engagement was announced at a party at the home of the groom-elect and at a candlelight ceremony at Sigma Phi Delta sorority house of Cal Poly University.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald E. Schmicking of Diamond Bar, the bride-elect is a 1970 graduate of Ganesha High School. She is a junior at Cal Poly but will attend the University of Southern California School of Dental Hygiene in the fall.

Mrs. Zebley is the son of Mrs. Omer F. Bowen of Upland and the late Franklin H. Zebley Jr. He graduated from Upland High School and is a senior at Cal Poly University. He is doing his field work at LeRoy's Boys Home in La Verne and is a member of Phi Sigma Chi fraternity.

Brockway-Bradshaw

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brockway of Ontario announce the engagement of their daughter, Patricia Ann, to Michael David Bradshaw, son of Mrs. Yvonne Bradshaw of Pomona.

A 1972 graduate of Ganesha High School, the bride-elect served as Miss Wisconsin in the 1971 All States Parade. She is attending Mt. San Antonio College where she was on the fall Dean's List.

She is employed at Michael J's in Pomona.

Mr. Bradshaw graduated from Pomona High School in 1966. He attended MSAC and is employed by the City of Pomona.

They plan to be married next year.

Locker room gets new look

By JEANNE BRYANT
P-B Staff Writer

The men's locker room at Chaffey College just "ain't what it used to be," and if athletes seem to hang around the training room more than in years past, Angie Reasoner could be the reason.

For two years Angie has been a men's assistant athletic trainer, first at Alta Loma High School and now at Chaffey College, and is on her way to earning a degree in physical therapy.

Angie was thrown off her horse three years ago and received a pelvic injury; but with it she also gained her interest in a career and a job not usually held by a woman. While receiving therapy for her injury Angie got first-hand experience in the use of therapy equipment and because familiar with the training room atmosphere and liked it.

It wasn't hard to get the trainer job at Alta Loma High, according to Angie. "Lou Hoyos, the head athletic trainer, was looking for anyone. He was desperate for help." That was in Angie's junior year. She told Hoyos she was interested in the job, took a correspondence course during the summer and "surprised everyone by showing up to work on Aug. 1 for the football season."

"It was hard at first for the guys to accept me, a girl in the training room and they had to remember to be dressed in the training room." Besides her duties as an assistant trainer, Angie also kept stats and was scorekeeper in other sports.

At the conclusion of her senior year in high school, Angie headed for Chaffey College with the hope of obtaining an assistant trainer job there. She had received an offer from another local college where she was offered a trainer job, but her interest in a physical therapy major led her to Chaffey.

"I kinda sneaked into the locker room job at Chaffey," Angie stated. She found a slight opposition at first and so, had to pass on the football season at the college. "The coaches felt it wouldn't be good for a girl in a 'male domain,' so I went back to work at Alta Loma High School during football."

When Angie first approached the Chaffey locker room staff for a job, "they said they felt it wouldn't be the right place for a girl—because of the language." But Red Hunter, the school's head trainer, got Angie a job keeping stats for basketball.

"I gradually worked my way into the job," Miss Reasoner says. "I started taping ankles, giving sound treatments, and was soon accepted in the training room."

Speaking of her job Angie says, "I'm a trainer and am seen as such. No one comes to me for treatment anymore than anyone else. Whoever is around does the work."

Angie takes her work very seriously. "Some people think it's a joke for me to be working in a men's training room. It irritates me that people don't take my job seriously and think I'm just doing it to get it with the guys."

In the locker room atmosphere Angie thinks it is easier to relate to other people. "My job has increased my rapport in talking with people in general."

Angie's responsibilities in her job include taping and wrapping injuries, sound treatment, whirlpool supervision and hydrocollator pack treatment. She is not paid for her work, but enjoys her duties because of her interest in physical therapy and sports, not the attention she gets as the only girl in the training room.

At the recent Mt. San Antonio Relays Angie was able to work as a trainer with the women track athletes. She enjoyed the experience and now has hopes of getting into women's sports at a large college, and in the future, professionally. "There is a need for a lot more women trainers for women's sports. Stuck in the back of my mind is the hope of working for a pro team once I have my degree," Angie stated. But for the near future, she is excited about working as a trainer during the Chaffey College football season this fall.

Angie's job has made her more aware of women's liberation. "When I first started out as a trainer I thought women's lib was dumb. But now I feel that if a woman or girl is as capable of doing a job as well as or better than a man, she should be able to do it."

Mark Hill, the male, and paid, assistant trainer at Chaffey, shows respect for Angie's work as a woman trainer. "I would put Angie up against any other woman trainer I know," he stated. "She's accepted and trusted to do a good job."

And although Angie has been accepted as part of the Chaffey locker room staff, it's always a shock to newcomers to see a girl in the men's locker room.

Pick-your-own

Outing can be thrifty

By PATRICIA MCCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — A nitpicker you're not—and never want to be. It's disdainful.

But what about taking up other pickin' things — apple pickin', strawberry pickin', corn pickin', tomato pickin'?

During the past five years the idea of picking fruits and vegetables yourself has been sprouting as a summertime pursuit that is both pleasurable and easy on the family budget.

It works this way: you motor or bike to a farm that caters to do-it-yourselfers when a particular crop is ready. You harvest what you want, the farmer measures or weighs it and charges you the wholesale price. That's about two-thirds what you'd pay a store.

But do you save money actually it depends.

Mrs. Virginia H. Knauer, director of the U.S. Office of Consumer Affairs, in her Consumer News bulletin, reports:

"While pick-your-own fruits and vegetables cost less, you may not save money. Regardless of how you figure the cost of your time driving to and from a farm and your time in the fields you still bear the cost of operating the car. Also, there probably will be additional time costs in cleaning and preparing your purchase when you get home."

Mrs. Knauer overlooks, however, the practically cost-free way of joining the pick-your-own set. Biking to the farm.

The Agriculture Department's Extension Service points to another plus. That drive to the country is more than just a matter of budget and food on the table. The "pick-your-own strawberries or what" excursion can be a fun-filled inexpensive family outing.

Another plus: you're getting super-fresh produce.

There are two ways of learning about pick-your-own farms near you. The easiest way: look for ads in the newspaper. There also might be commercials on radio, so listen.

The second way, according to Mrs. Knauer, is to call the local office of the Agriculture Extension Service (AES). It's probably listed in the phone book under county government heading.

The AES agents will know about pick-your-own farms in your county and also ought to be able to tell you which crops are ready for picking. He'll be able to give you farm numbers and will know if you'll need to supply containers for your harvest.

Mrs. Knauer said once you get to the farm, don't be bashful. Ask the farmer how to judge mature fruits and vegetables. Select only mature fruits or vegetables. If you pick the undeveloped ones, the families of pickers a week hence will find slim pickin's.

Maturity times vary because of seasonal differences nationwide. The following is Mrs. Knauer's general guide to fruits and vegetables usually available at pick-your-own farms.

—July or later. Apple, beet, blueberry, broccoli, cabbage, cantaloupe, carrot, cauliflower, chard, cherry, corn, cucumber, eggplant, green bean, lettuce, lima bean, onion, pear, pepper, pumpkin, radish, raspberry, squash, tomato, zucchini.

Rattles & straws

That's right, you're wrong

By JOSEPH FIRMAN

To the victims along the spoils, as the old saying goes, and for the victim voter-taxpayer the so-called political system is somewhat spoiled, if not rotten, when the in-powers begin to juggle the boundary lines of senatorial, congressional and assembly districts to assure a preponderance of loyal voters in the required region.

Our elected officials (and they are all, all honorable men—those that aren't in jail) like to make a jig-saw puzzle of the various electoral districts to provide ballot strength for the nonentities who occupy our state and national capitals.

The latest mess proposed in the cloud-cuckoo-land of Sacramento had to do with our own 49th Assembly District, and what the boys came up with looked like a finger-painting by a chimpanzee. The legislators, determined to continue being legislators, made a hash of the district, so that Claremont found itself unaccountably in the same district as Bakersfield, with prongs of the district reaching to the strongly Republican top fifth of Santa Monica, dodging southward along the San Diego Freeway, picking up Tomorrowland in Disneyland, but avoiding Frontierland, and circling back on the Big Red Cars through Corona and Rubidoux.

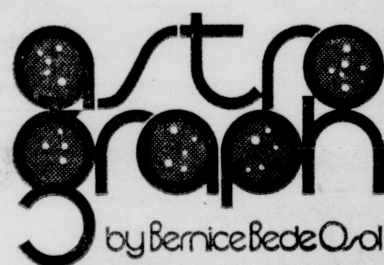

The practice of the party in power changing district lines to keep their seats, as we say, it is a time-dishonored tradition of American politics. It's cheating, of course, but everyone does it, so why fuss? Gerrymandering isn't exactly Watergate, now is it?

Gerrymandering (brief pause for a lecture of U.S. politics) is named for Gov. Eldbridge Gerry of Massachusetts, whose party redistricted the state in 1812—plus (sala)—manader, which one of the aborted counties looked like when the operation was over.

Our legislators came up with a 49th district that looked more like a lobster than a salamander. This crawling crustacean had part of its body in Pomona, part in Claremont, and part in Corona del Mar. Its antenna reached from Mt. Baldy to Tucson, Ariz., and its tail dipped into Puddingstone by way of Barstow.

The lines are sharply drawn. The district boundary runs through a dormitory at Pitzer College, encompassing the western part, but cutting off the cafeteria and east wing, known to be strongly democratic. It includes the Harvey Mudd swimming pool, but deletes the Pomona College observatory.

The proposed 49th Assembly District boundary actually runs through my house. The living room is in the 72nd District, so I can vote at the Chamber of Commerce, but my wife, who spends most of her time in the kitchen, has to drive to Bakersfield to cast her ballot.

Poor, hard

Jim: "North's Stayman two-club response had to be pure whimsy. I see he was lucky enough to find his partner with four good hearts so that the final contract was in that suit."

Oswald: "Malcolm opened the king of spades. Who wouldn't? He was allowed to hold the trick and shifted to ace and another heart. South dropped the jack under the ace so as to win the second heart in dummy."

Jim: "I assume that the next play was a low club. That gave you the chance to rise with the ace and lead a third heart, but South would wind up with three hearts, three clubs and two aces."

Oswald: "I could see that happening, so I ducked quickly. South had no problem about what to do next. He finessed the 10-spot. Then he cashed his spade ace and ruffed a spade and came to the same eight tricks with three of his trumps, ace of spades and a spade ruff, two clubs and the ace of diamonds."

Drawbacks of converters outlined

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — The impending federal law to force car manufacturers and owners to mount catalytic converters on their engines will cost motorists hundreds of dollars a year and seriously worsen the fuel shortage problem, Dr. Maurice Nelles said recently.

Nelles, a consultant to the National Academy of Sciences, said autos equipped with the devices will use 15 to 20 per cent more gasoline.

Federal Environmental Protection Agency regulations would require installation of the converters, as an antipollution measure, on new cars in 1976, and earlier in California.

The devices will cost individual motorists about $200 per year, including the cost of more gasoline, Nelles said.

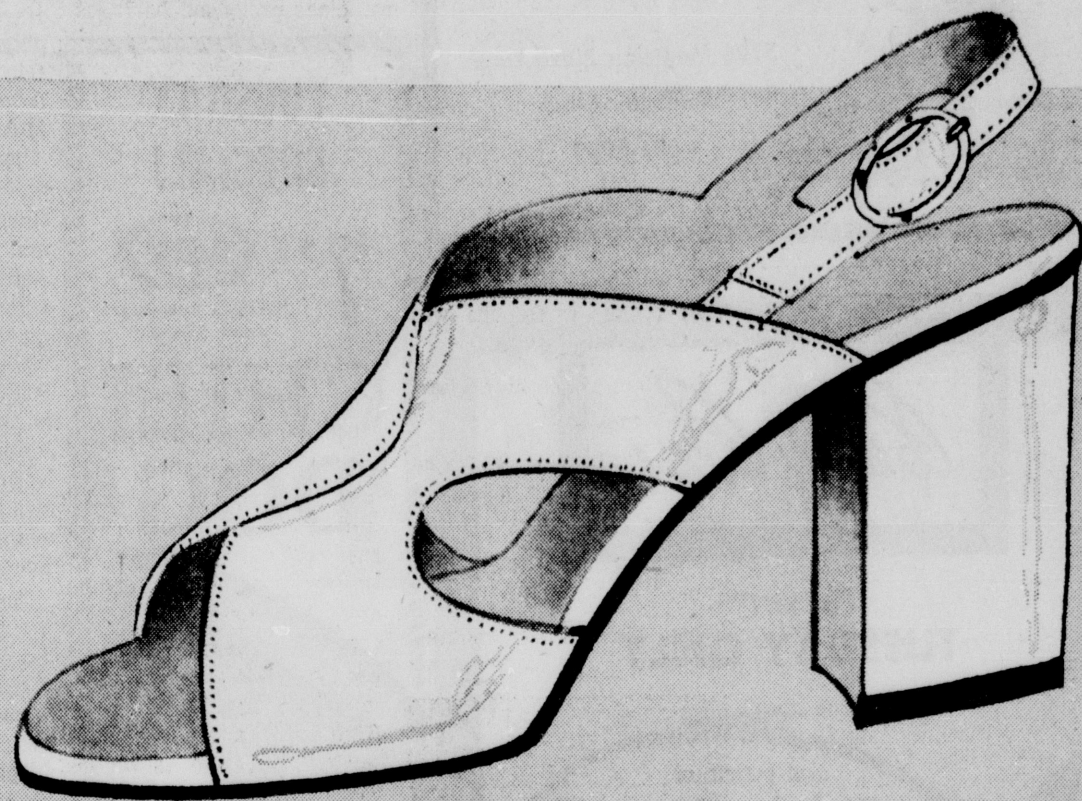

"That works out to the burning of 15 million extra gallons of gasoline, and this at a time when we already have a fuel problem," Nelles said.

Festival's orchestra given loud response

By JOSEPH H. FIRMAN
CLAREMONT — The orchestra of the Claremont Music Festival opened its fifth season Friday night with a colorful and demanding concert in Bridges Hall of Music, Pomona College.

A near-sellout audience of music lovers gave conductor Giora Bernstein and his 60 musicians prolonged barrages of enthusiastic applause.

A surprising number of people ignored concert manners and came trudging in late, to the discomfiture of the orchestra and audience. Late arrivals caused the concert to start 15 minutes behind schedule, and even so, a large number marched in after the second movement of Haydn's "Hornsignal" Symphony, causing maestro Bernstein to wait on the podium for several minutes while the latecomers were seated.

The program also included Stravinsky's "Dumbarton Oaks" concerto for 15 players, and Richard Strauss' complex, rarely-performed suite, "Der Burger als Edelmann." Charles Libove, first violinist of the Woodstock String Quartet and the Philharmonia Trio, was soloist. Film and television actor Norman Belkin was narrator of Derrick Henry's witty adaptation of Moliere's "Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme."

The first festival concert was an exciting and rewarding musical evening. Bernstein, his professional staff and his talented students have set themselves a high standard to uphold through the summer.

Money secondary Actor won't accept unfulfilling roles

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Can you believe an actor when he says he refuses roles that could make him a millionaire because he chooses to work in movies with integrity and characterizations that are meaningful?

Most often, no.

But Robert Blake, the swarthy, brooding star of "In Cold Blood" and "Tell Them Willie Boy Is Here," looks you in the eye when he says he works for fulfillment, not for money.

If you challenge his sincerity you're liable to be hit in the eye.

Blake was lying on the floor of his bedroom, his feet propped up on the bed to reduce the pain of a backache.

"If I wanted to work for money I'd still be a thief," he said. "I was a good and successful thief when I was younger. Or I could have stayed with pushing drugs. I made big money doing that."

"But if money is the name of the game I'd have become a brain surgeon and invested my earnings in the stock market. I have friends in drug pushing who make more than surgeons."

"Why would I be an actor if I wanted to make a fortune? Aside from a very few, most actors are poor. I think the average income in the Screen Actors Guild is something like $1,700 a year."

Blake wore sweatpants and no shirt. There was three days' growth of beard on his face. He groaned and flexed his muscles to relieve the pain.

"Guess who they wanted to play Little Joe on 'Bonanza' when the series started? Me," Blake said. "Mike Landon's a millionaire now. I didn't like the part or the series. I still don't."

Blake turned down $150,000 to appear in "The Wild Bunch," and I walked out on $100,000 for "Bridge At Remagen." And I wouldn't do "Crazy Joe" for $125,000. Add that all up and you got a pretty good nest egg.

"But the pictures weren't good. I didn't like what I'd have to do to myself as an actor to earn that kind of money."

"The time will never come when I need money bad enough to take poor roles. I did 'Cold Blood' for $20,000 a year for two years. That comes out to $200 a week or less. But I believed in the picture and what it had to say. It was fulfilling and right for me emotionally."

Blake feels the same way about "Electra Glide in Blue," his new movie which was shown at the Cannes Film Festival.

He was paid the less-than-electric sum of $25,000.

"But it was worth it," said the actor who refused five times that amount for other pictures. "Deep down inside I think this picture has a chance. I picked 'Easy Rider' and 'Billy Jack' to be winners."

"I believe 'Electra Glide' has real magic. It's about an Arizona motorcycle cop who lives by the book. I believe in the story and the role."

"It's a sad reflection on our values when people can't respond to the fact that I don't want to make a lot of money in my life. I've got enough to last me the rest of my life the way I live now."

Blake, his wife and two children live in a modest home in the San Fernando Valley. The family piles into a camper frequently to spend weekends and vacations along the Colorado River. It's not a movie star life.

"I could afford better," Blake concluded. "But like choosing my movies carefully, I also live my life according to my own standards."

Bit Parts: Lloyd Nolan will star in "Isn't It Shocking," an ABC television movie... Natalie Wood and Robert Wagner joined producer Aaron

TV has limitations Peppard: it's good to get back to pictures

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — George Peppard had a gleam in his eyes, as well he might considering he was eating a light lunch preparatory to playing a nude bedroom scene with a luscious young thing named Pat Anderson.

"It's good to get back to motion pictures," said Peppard.

"They'd never allow a scene like this in television. This one is so wild they aren't even shooting a cover shot for it when the picture eventually is played on the tube. They'll just cut it out."

George is ambivalent about large screens and small screens. He stars regularly in "Banacek" for television, and "Back to Back" is his first feature film since the series began two years ago.

He has devoted most of his television hiatus to starring in the Universal adventure drama, leaving scant time for a vacation.

"I'm not all that crazy about working," he said. "I'm trying to develop a system whereby I stay home and they send me money. But it has some regrettable flaw that I haven't solved. So I keep working."

"I have no grand passion for acting. But I am a professional actor and they pay me a great deal of money—probably too much. It provides me with a living and allows me to pay my alimony."

"Someday I'd like to become a director but so far no one is beating a path to my door."

The doctor comments

Sour cream soothes geographic tongue

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Some time ago I read your column on the sore tongue. I used to have this problem and a specialist recommended to me that I take a mouthful of sour cream and hold it in my mouth for some time. Repeat this regularly, even as often as every hour. It worked for me, and I'd like to pass on this recommendation to other people.

Dear Reader — I did write a column about geographic tongue. This problem causes raised spots on the tongue.

some soreness, and it may change dramatically overnight. I was surprised to receive a large volume of mail concerning this problem, and most of the letters assured me that this condition could be cured. The various remedies that have been recommended for curing it have included the gamut from holding sour cream in the mouth to various vitamins, mouth washes, throat lozenges and just about as wide a variety of suggestions as the number of letters received. I'm always happy to have reader's suggestions, and sometimes it helps me to understand the confusion people have about medical problems.

The truth is, there is no known treatment for geographic tongue. The problem is, not all sore tongues are geographic tongues. The tongue is a very good indicator of many medical disorders. This is why the doctor asks a patient to stick out the tongue, and taken a good look at it during a medical examination. You can see evidence of some vitamin deficiencies from the tongue, you can find evidences of anemia, and there are many other important things to observe during the examination of the tongue.

Whether or not you can do something about a sore tongue depends on what's causing it. It's due to a vitamin deficiency, then of course this problem can be corrected. If it is the changes of the tongue associated with certain anemias, correction of this underlying problem will change the character of the tongue. The point I would like to make to the large number of you who sent in letters of treatment for geographic tongue is that you're probably all correct in the point that many of these forms of treatment are helpful for certain sore tongues, but not for all sore tongues, which gets me back to my original statement, "not every sore tongue is a geographic tongue."

To emphasize the point a little more, not all skin rashes are measles. A skin rash could be chicken pox, scarlet fever, or even secondary syphilis, or such exotic illnesses as Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever. The treatment of the skin rash depends on what causes it. The same applies to changes in the tongue. The treatment of the problem of the tongue, including sore tongues, depends on what's causing it.

For those changes in the tongue that are really geographic tongue, I am sorry to say that we really do not have a specific treatment at this time. For those who have changes in their tongue associated with vitamin deficiencies or pernicious anemia, there are suitable treatments for these disorders. A symptom is a symptom, it is not a diagnosis, and this is why a doctor has to take fairly complete history and examination to find out what it is that's causing the symptom, then treat this problem and not the symptom itself.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, in care of The Progress-Bulletin, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. For a copy of Dr. Lamb's new booklet on constipation, send 50 cents to the same address and ask for "Constipation" booklet.

Old faces in new places

Nixon's post-Watergate cabinet now complete

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) — With the swearing-in this past week of James R. Schlesinger as secretary of defense, the Nixon post-Watergate cabinet is now in place.

William E. Colby, named to succeed Schlesinger as director of the Central Intelligence Agency, is the only high-level administration member who has not already received Senate confirmation and his is expected soon.

For the most part, the new cabinet is made up of old faces in new places. Elliot R. Richardson and Schlesinger rate top billing as utility men.

Richardson started out as undersecretary of the State Department, moved to head Health, Education and Welfare when Nixon was forced to remove his old friend Robert Finch from the job, then shifted to the Defense Department to take over from Melvin R. Laird at the beginning of the second Nixon administration and finally was moved to Justice to lend his substantial prestige to that scandal-stained department.

Schlesinger has moved almost as much. He joined the Nixon administration in its infancy as the deputy budget director, was made chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission two years later, switched to the CIA at the beginning of the second term and then moved to the Pentagon to take over from Richardson.

Now, after a brief retirement, Mel Laird is back in the White House as the President's chief domestic counselor, a post formerly held by the Watergate-retired John D. Ehrlichman. And Bryce Harlow, a savvy political operative, has been coaxed from the corporate opulence of Procter & Gamble to return as a White House adviser.

Observers of the Nixon administration are looking at the staff shake-up both inside and outside the White House to see whether the highly centralized operation of the Ehrlichman-Haldeman team has changed.

Certainly, the additions of Laird and Harlow have added some political seasoning to the Nixon entourage that previously did not exist. Both are highly regarded on Capitol Hill and should help in improving badly frayed relations between Nixon and the Congress.

As domestic counselor, Laird has shown no intention of rigidly controlling the flow of proposals to the President in the fashion of his predecessor. He is expected to engage more in the broad-scale advice of the type furnished by Harlow and Daniel P. Moynihan—the Harvard urbanist who now is Nixon's ambassador to Europe—during the first two years of the Nixon presidency.

Colorado Gov. John A. Love, recently taken on as an assistant with a special mandate in the energy field, is a man of independent political stature who can be counted on to bring divergent views into the White House.

But already there are indications of some conflicts between the new arrivals and remaining Ehrlichman and Haldeman loyalists.

The most visible is between Laird and Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler, a Haldeman protege for virtually all of his professional life.

Laird last week voiced the opinion in an interview with Washington Post columnist David Broder that Ziegler's credibility had been so eroded by his months of denying that anybody in the White House had anything to do with the Watergate scandal that he should leave his post as the President's chief spokesman.

The next day, Ziegler told newsmen he had received the personal assurances of the President that he would remain in his job.

Later in the day, he brought Laird into the San Clemente press room for a "coffee session" with newsmen. With Ziegler looking over his shoulder, Laird shrugged off the incident and smilingly accused Ziegler of "over-reacting."

But he pointedly said that he had no quarrel with Broder's account of the interview and one has the feeling that is to be heard from this conflict.

Over response to abortions

Medical community at crossroads

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Caught between militant abortion advocates and a growing "right to life" movement, the medical community is seeking a morally neutral but medically affirmative response to abortion.

Such a response, according to the president of the Rockefeller Foundation, Dr. John H. Knowles, is necessary because of the Supreme Court's January decision overturning most antiabortion laws. The Court ruled at that time that the public interest in abortion lies only in ensuring maximum safety for women who choose abortions.

But Knowles, writing in the current issue of Family Planning Perspectives—the technical journal of the Planned Parenthood Federation of America—said the present "free market" approach to providing access to abortions will not meet the Court's injunction to ensure the best standards of medical safety.

"It remains for the individual to decide whether or not to seek an abortion, on the basis of her own moral or religious beliefs and values," said Knowles, who also served as a general director of Massachusetts General Hospital.

He said the government and the health system, however, "clearly are responsible" for making sure abortions take place "under the best medical circumstances."

As a result of the Supreme Court decision, there will be an estimated 1.2 to 1.8 million legal abortions in the United States every year. Many people contend that neither the government nor the health system need take any action in the face of the Court decision.

But Knowles said that while "laissez faire" attitudes "may be adequate for selling soap and cars ... they are certainly not adequate for providing health services."

This time as unarmed humanitarians

Green Berets are back in action

HAI VAN PASS, South Vietnam (UPI) — The U.S. Special Forces Green Berets are back in action in South Vietnam, but only as unarmed "overt humanitarians" with firm orders to stay out of trouble and not get hurt.

Furthermore, this time they have left their identifying Green Berets at home. "If we do arm them, it'll be with shotguns for use against snakes," said U.S. Army Brig. Gen. Robert Kingstons, their commanding officer and himself a veteran of the Special Forces and the American campaign in Cambodia in 1970. The Green Berets are working as field teams for the Joint Casualty Resolution Center (JCRC), which is trying to clear up the fate of the 2,400 Americans in Indochina who are listed either as missing in action or "BNR" — declared dead by their services but whose bodies have never been recovered.

It is proving to be a laborious assignment. Since its inception in January, the JCRC has investigated only five if an estimated 1,100 airplane crash sites. A sixth site in mountains 20 miles northwest of Da Nang turned out to be the wreckage of a civilian Air Vietnam DC3 that already had been fully investigated by South Vietnamese aviation officials. No Americans were involved, although 38 Vietnamese were killed.

In theory, anyone can visit crash sites in South Vietnamese controlled territory if he is willing to climb mountains and hack a path through jungle.

Crashes in open, accessible territory invariably would have been reached as soon as they occurred. But the theory of accessibility is just that. Kingston smiles bravely through his description of a jungle of red tape as formidable as the jungle in which the crash sites are located. He needs formal permission from the Saigon-based Joint Military Team which holds the ultimate control over his activities for each investigation.

meanwhile he and his team of 23 would have to return to their base at Nakahon Phnom in Thailand.

"Our mission is overt and humanitarian," he said. "We have no secrets and must be seen to have no secrets. That's the way we want it." The crash sites so far investigated have all been in undisputed South Vietnamese territory, whereas 95 per cent of the crashes on the JCRC's books are in Communist-controlled areas of South Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos, and in North Vietnam.

She's waging war on gobbledygook

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Although long-winded gibberish is stoutly rooted as one of bureaucracy's most insufferable by-products, there is a way to make use of it.

Take Suzanne Schroeder, for instance. She collects it.

The slim, 27-year-old state government worker has for the past two years compiled the brightest gems of "official" writing abuses and misuses in a monthly column she edits for a state agency newsletter. She calls it "gobbledygook."

A sample:

"In potential Problem Analysis, 20-20 hindsight in reverse is applied to identify future problems that may keep the plan from being successful." — From a training manual given department managers.

Frequently, although she admits it is "not always possible," Miss Schroeder includes a translation for the benefit of her readers.

For the above, she offers the plausible explanation that 20-20 hindsight in reverse means simply good foresight.

The point of her column, besides entertainment, is "war on gobbledygook," which she defines as: "A word to describe the indirect and roundabout expressions that cloud the mind of those that use them as well as those that try to read them."

Some examples:

"The occupational incidence of the demand change is unlikely to coincide with the occupational profile of those registered at the employment office." — From a Department of Labor publication.

The translation: The jobs may not fit the people.

"The objective of this pilot study is to process transactions documents generated from these departments in a more rapid and accurate manner. The effort includes a substantial training process and major changes in the method by which documents flow. If this pilot effort is effective, there will be a major improvement in the speed with which transactions processing is completed." — From a state Personnel Board report.

The translation: If we succeed, we will have been successful.

Occasionally there are cases of official double-talk that need no translation. Here is Miss Schroeder's favorite:

Worker's account of accident: "When I pushed the fire drawer closed, my right thumb got caught in the drawer."

Supervisor's account of the same accident: "Failure of (employee) to accurately estimate drawer closure speed for timely removal of digit."

That also illustrates one of Damage to L.B. apartment set at $125,000

LONG BEACH (UPI) — Damage to an apartment building destroyed by the explosion of an underground gas main was set Thursday at $125,000, according to fire department officials.

The estimates included damage to six automobiles which burned following the explosion Wednesday. Two persons were burned in the blaze, one seriously.

Long Beach fire officials speculated that some natural gas flues may have seeped into the apartment building from a leak in the line prior to the explosion.

Authorities were trying to determine what ignited the flues.

Mrs. Alana Syver was reported in serious condition Thursday at Long Beach Community Hospital with first and second degree burns. Her husband, Arthur, 32, was in satisfactory condition.

Repair of harmonica's sour notes sounds sweet music

I purchased a Hohner Chordamonica in Pomona on Dec. 5, 1972. This instrument cost $21. Within 10 days one note started going sour. Within another five days 25 minutes of warm-up were required before the instrument would play correctly.

When I returned the harp to the local store on Jan. 12, 1973, no amount of warm-up would bring it in tune. By this time a crack in the wood had become visible.

I realize that harmonicas do not have a long life but I feel that a $21 instrument, brand new, should give more than two weeks' part-time service.

Would you be so good as to assist me in getting the instrument operating correctly and at least a semi-permanent "fix" from someone? — R.F., Pomona.

The general manager of M. Hohner, Inc., in Hicksville, N.Y., has written that his office "would be most pleased to assist in bringing to a satisfactory conclusion the service problem" on your harmonica.

He asks that you send the instrument directly to the Hicksville office, where all of the company's harmonicas, harmonica products and harmonica service are handled.

We hope this is sweet music to your ears.

We went to an automobile agency in Long Beach on June 10 because it had advertised very cheap cars on television.

We were pressured so much that before I knew it my husband had signed a contract for a 1972 Pinto. At the time we were so tired that we didn't try out the car or notice that it had over 33,000 miles on it.

I told my husband that the price for the car was too high and it had too many miles on it. The next day we took it back and demanded our $100 down payment back.

We were told by the salesman to pick any car we wanted brand new and he would let us have it at the same price. I picked out one but was told in the office it was too expensive.

I read all the paper work on the first car and noticed on a small paper the mileage was not listed although it was stated that not to show the mileage was a federal offense.

My problem is that my husband is on total disability and I am the only one in the home working. Can you help me get my money back? — L.V., Chino.

The agency manager answered an Action Line inquiry, saying he was refunding the $100 to you. The only reason it hadn't been refunded before, he claimed, was that you hadn't asked for it.

He said the mileage was omitted from the federal odometer mileage statement through an oversight but was listed on your guarantee.

A market for articles made as a hobby was wanted by D.B. of Pomona, whose letter was published June 25. She and other senior citizens are exploring the possibility of holding periodic sales in a store on the Pomona Mall.

For those who want more immediate results, a reader calls attention to Craft Fair, a senior citizen shop sponsored by the Assistance League of Pasadena at 820 E. California Blvd., Pasadena.

The shop takes "distinctive handcraft items" made by senior citizens on consignment.

At Tuesday night meeting

Approval of 113 substitute teachers will be sought from Pomona board

POMONA — Names of 113 substitute teachers for 1973-74 will be submitted for approval when Pomona school board meets Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at District Education Center.

If approved, they would be eligible for work effective Sept. 10, at a pay rate of $32 a day.

Resignations from three teachers—James E. Follis, Dorothy F. McNeil and Peggy S. Wade—will be acted upon.

The board will be asked to approve the employment of two psychologists, Mary H. Tarail and Diana K. Wheeler, for next year.

Names of 27 administrators and teachers will be submitted to the board for reclassification, elevation in the salary scale.

The administration will ask for authorization to establish a new 11-month, library clerk position and for authorization to hire 94 student aides at $1.65 an hour under the federal Neighborhood Youth Corps work training project.

The board will consider a request from the Pomona Day School to use three classrooms at North San Antonio school for an eight-week teen summer project, Tuesday through Aug. 17.

Planners say 20 students will be taught and supervised by three college students and three interns.

A similar program is functioning in five classrooms at Pomona High School.

Adrienne Herd is director of the Pomona Day School.

Board members will be told that Casa Colina Hospital, after 13 years, is terminating its contract with the district which provided a classroom program for orthopedically handicapped pupils at the secondary level.

For the summer, this class is being taught at Palomares Junior High School. In the future, Pomona residents may attend the orthopedically handicapped school operated by the Claremont district.

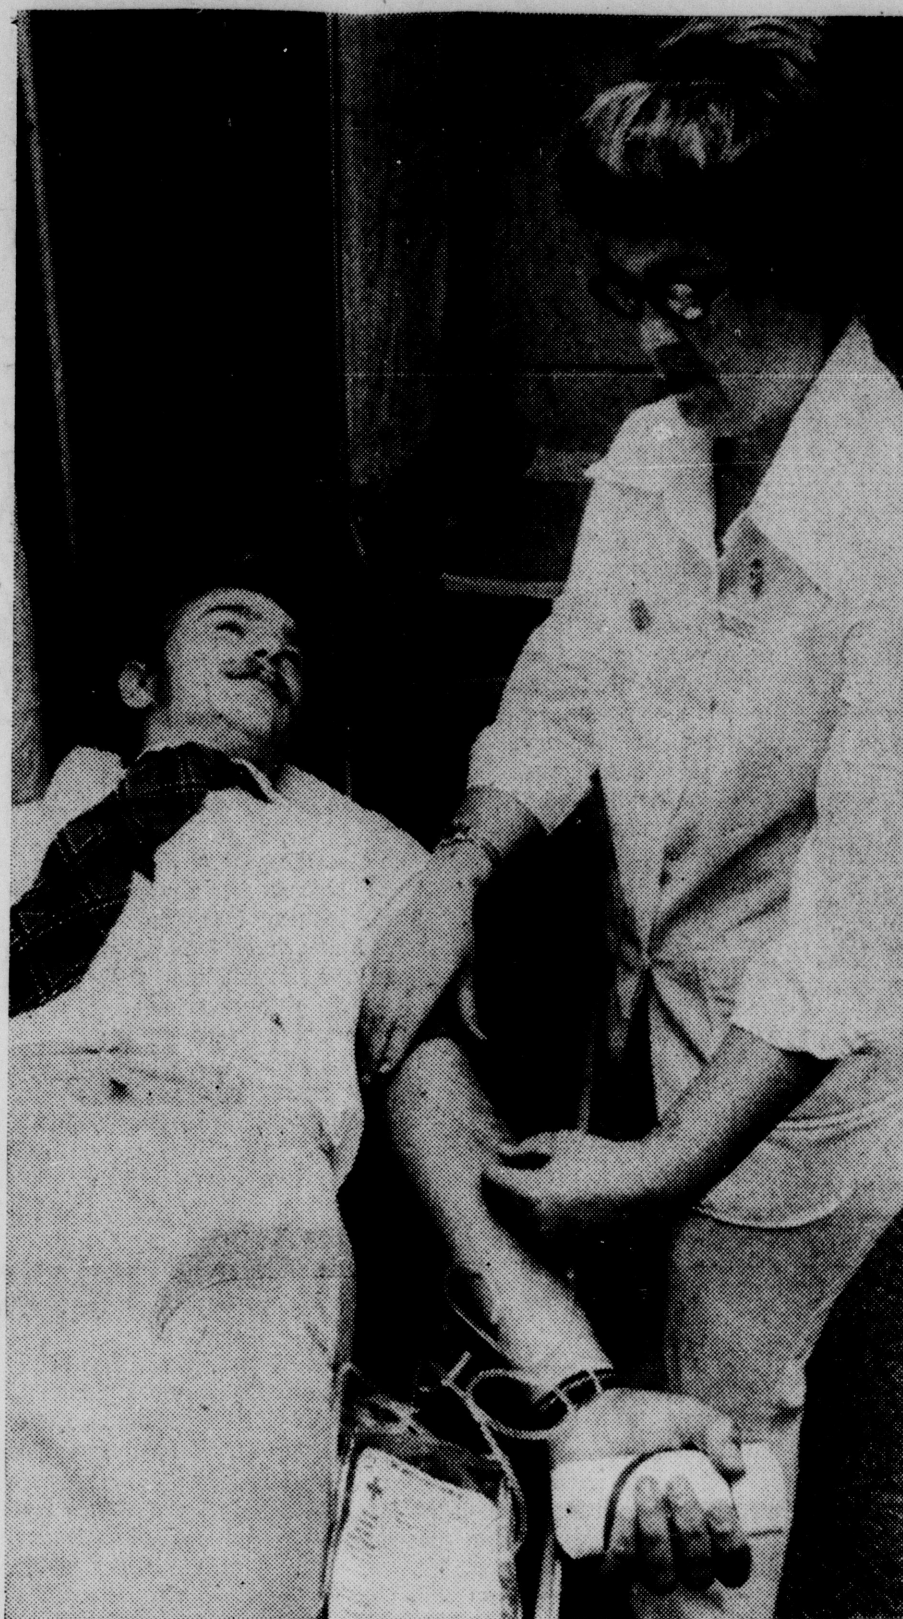

However, hospital bedside teachers will be provided as needed.

A report will be presented showing summer school preregistration up at the elementary level and down at the secondary level over 1972, and first-day attendance following the same pattern.

The pupil-teacher ratio the first day was the heaviest it has been in three years, averaging 34.75 at the elementary level and 31.90 at the high school level.

Supt. Robert E. Wentz will inform board members he has called a special meeting for 7:30 a.m. July 17, to review and approve a 1973-74 publication budget.

Dr. Garrett C. Nichols, assistant superintendent of business services, said that a trailer bill to Senate Bill 90 (A.B. 1267) has been passed in both the Assembly and the Senate and now is on Gov. Reagan's desk.

State to honor PSH hero who saved patient

POMONA — Steve Rawlinson, a Pacific State Hospital employee who saved the life of a 22-year-old patient in February, will receive the state's highest award for heroism in ceremonies at the hospital Tuesday at 10 a.m.

Authorities say Rawlinson, a 22-year-old groundsman, risked his life when he pulled a wandering patient off the railroad tracks just seconds before the train reached them.

As a Saturday, Nichols said, details of the bill were not known. "There have been a lot of amendments and we're not positive how it will affect our district. It may give us additional funding and if so, our publication budget will change significantly from our tentative budget."

Nichols said there was a possibility the bill may allow state average daily attendance (ADA) allotments for a percentage of students who move out of the district, it may reinstate portions of the permissive, community service tax which Senate Bill 90 abolished, and it may support meals for needy children.

'Tragedy' is talk topic

ONTARIO — Author-educator Ronald the "Tragedy of Cucamonga" Wednesday at the Ontario Library beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Miller will cover such highlights as the murders of John Rains and Ramon Carrillo, the Hayes-Carlisle feud, the attempted lynching of Mrs. Rains and other events of interest at the old rancho.

The lecture is part of the current history series being presented by the library every Wednesday evening through July 25.

A 19-year-old student of Zagreb University where he is majoring in electrical engineering, Vadjon is studying English and typing at summer school in Pomona during his stay here.

He is a regular donor to the Yugoslavian Red Cross Blood Bank in his native land and donated to the credit of St. Madeleine Catholic Church in Pomona.

During the summer months, blood donors are urgently needed at the Pomona Blood Donor Center, 420 N. Reservoir St., which is open Tuesdays from 3 to 6:30 p.m. and Wednesdays from 1:30 to 5 p.m.

Donors can be from 18 to 65. Appointments may be made by calling 629-7455.

Bank of America transfers Coons to Bellflower

POMONA — Dale E. Coons of Pomona has been appointed new manager of the Bank of America branch office in Bellflower.

Coons, who joined the firm in 1939, had served as assistant vice president-assistant manager of the Pomona main office.

He was graduated from Mt. San Antonio College and holds advanced degrees from the American Institute of Banking.

Coons is past president of the Pomona Host Lions Club, served eight years on the Pomona Parks and Recreation Commission, and is a trustee at the Pomona First Baptist Church.

He resides on Hacienda Place with his wife, Priscilla. They have three grown children and one grandchild.

Prayers were answered

Jessie fooled 'em all and everyone grateful

POMONA — While a baby's cry may not be the highlight of a parent's day, or night either, one Pomona couple isn't about to complain.

In fact, for Bill and Ester Lay of 248 W. Aliso St., even the cries of their three-month-old daughter, Jessie Leeatta, are minor miracles.

Born March 21 of this year, Jessie appeared normal and healthy. But less than 24 hours later she began to turn blue because of a lack of oxygen and, in the words of one of her doctors at Pomona Valley Community Hospital, "was deteriorating right before our eyes."

"She's one of those babies who fool us," explained Dr. William Cheverton. "There was no outward sign that anything was wrong with her. She didn't have a heart murmur."

Jessie Leeatta's condition was diagnosed as a congenital heart condition and she was rushed by ambulance to White Memorial Hospital in Los Angeles, where a team of specialists performed surgery on one of her heart valves.

"Nobody thought she would live," said

Mrs. Jay Butler, the baby's grandmother, who lives with the family. "The doctors wouldn't make any predictions, but when they came out after the operation they were all smiling and we knew our prayers were answered."

During the months that followed, her condition was complicated by a case of pneumonia and she has gained only one pound since birth, but, says her mother, "she is very active and should grow up to have a normal and healthy life."

The costs, which have now run into several thousands dollars, haven't been easy on the family, whose only income is from Lay's employment at the Thunderbird bowling alley in Montclair.

But, reports Mrs. Lay, things appear to be working out with the help of state aid.

In the meantime, Jessie Leeatta has become something of a local celebrity in the neighborhood where the Lays live and shop, with business coming to a standstill when Mrs. Lay takes her to the supermarket.

"We're really proud of her," said Mrs. Lay. "It really is a miracle she lived."

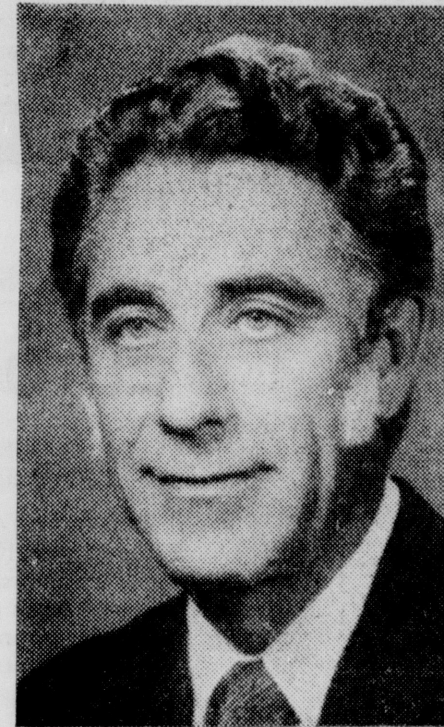

Local man is president of physical therapy unit

POMONA — Charles M. Magistro, director of physical therapy at Pomona Valley Community Hospital, was elected president of the American Physical Therapy Association at the group's 50th annual conference in Houston, Tex.

Magistro becomes the 23rd president of the national association which was founded in 1921 and has over 20,000 members.

A resident of Upland, Magistro received his education at Pomona College and Columbia University. In addition to heading the physical therapy department at PVCH for 20 years, he is a special consultant to the departments of physical therapy at San Antonio Community Hospital and St. Bernardine Hospital in San Bernardino.

Prior to his election as president, Magistro served as treasurer of the Ameri-

Magistro has been a pioneer in the development of physical therapy programs at the community hospital level.

Firms with local branches combine

Dupont Glore Forgan Inc. and Walston & Co., Inc., with branches in Pomona, have combined their business operations, it was announced in New York City.

In the new structure, Walston Inc., will conduct the sales and marketing services formerly provided by both organizations.

The total capital of Dupont Walston is in excess of $53 million.

Dupont Glore Forgan has been restructured to be responsible for processing the business of both firms. This includes areas of operations, data processing, securities handling, customer accounting, communications, floor brokerage and administrative services.

Total capitalization of Dupont Glore Forgan is in excess of $76 million.

Daniel J. Cullen is chairman of the board and chairman of the executive committee of Dupont Walston.

Walter E. Auch, formerly executive vice president of Dupont Glore Forgan, has been named president and chief executive officer of Dupont Walston.

Morton H. Myerson has been named chairman, president and chief executive officer of Dupont Glore Forgan Inc. William D. Fleming and Meyerson will serve as vice chairmen of the Dupont Walston board.

35-year teacher retires at Palomares Junior High

POMONA — Mrs. Olivia V. Rhambo, a teacher at Palomares Junior High School, has retired ending a 35-year career in education. Mrs. Rhambo began her career in Eagle Lake, Tex., her hometown. She taught high school English there 13 years and periodically coached girls' basketball teams.

Still in Texas, she taught in Brookshire and Waelder before teaching 15 years for the Bay City Independent School System where she entered the field of special education. She served in a psychologist-teacher role.

While there she also worked with the Matagorda County Council for Retarded Children and eventually set up a school for trainable children.

In 1967 she accepted a position with the Enterprise School District at Compton. A short time later she came to Pomona where she has been a teacher of exceptional children and a department head for four years.

Mrs. Rhambo holds lifetime credentials in general education and exceptional children. She has B.A. and M.A. degrees in education. She did advanced work in the field of education and exceptional children at the University of Texas and UCLA. She has traveled extensively.

Teaching children with learning disabilities, she claims, is really no different than teaching any other child.

"One simply tries to make sure that each child becomes more proficient in reaching his own potential. Special education must be tailored to fit his needs as he develops."

Retiring publisher leaves rich legacy

The retirement of Charles T. Richardson as publisher marks the end of an era for this newspaper. For the first time in some 70 years the name of Richardson has disappeared from the masthead of the Progress-Bulletin.

Born into the newspaper business, Charles Richardson was reared on printer's ink and as a teenager he served his apprenticeship in several departments of the Progress-Bulletin.

This early experience in the advertising and circulation departments of the newspaper helped to prepare him for the role he was to play after he had received his college degree in business administration and joined the Progress-Bulletin staff on a fulltime basis in 1934.

While the management of the Progress-Bulletin from a business standpoint was his main responsibility for many years, Charles Richardson nevertheless was familiar with every facet of the publishing field.

During the Progress-Bulletin's great growth in the last two decades, when the entire valley changed from a citrus economy to an urban one, it was Charles Richardson's leadership that made possible the expansion of this newspaper to meet the challenge of a changing community.

While his greatest interest has been in the publishing field, he has also been influential in sound development of the community. His enthusiasm for the Pomona Valley has not only been expressed in management policies which stressed service to the community, but in civic affairs in which he has been involved and will continue to be involved. His major activities in the community have included the YMCA, United Crusade, Red Cross, Los Angeles County Fair Association and Pomona First Federal Savings and Loan Association.

Throughout its existence, this newspaper has not only strived to keep its readers informed, but also to emphasize the resources and advantages of the Pomona Valley as a place in which to live, work and play. This has been the spirit and direction of Charles T. Richardson's concept of a daily newspaper's role.

At a company dinner Sunday night, Charles Richardson received the accolades of his associates to whom he has not only been publisher, but teacher, counselor and friend.

More than 200 employees of the Progress-Bulletin signed a resolution rededicating themselves to Charles Richardson's conviction that a public journal is a public trust to which all who are connected with it share their full measure of responsibility.

Thus, with the legacy passed on by Charles Richardson, begins a new era in the long history of the Progress-Bulletin.

Nixon ills slow '76 maneuvering

The early strategies for nearly all the prospective 1976 Republican presidential candidates are in confusion while they wait to see what happens to President Nixon on Watergate. Exception: Gov. Nelson Rockefeller.

Those affected are Vice President Spiro Agnew, presidential adviser John Connally, and Gov. Ronald Reagan, each in his own way linked to Mr. Nixon. They really are in a waiting posture made painful by a factor politicians detest — the unknown.

Look first at Reagan, who does not intend to run for a third term. He has been a steady, stout supporter of the President and his policies. His plan is to pick up party chips by helping major GOP candidates in 1974.

But how does he build momentum and catch useful public attention in the meantime, when he doesn't know what the stream of Watergate hearings and trials will do to Mr. Nixon's stature?

Reagan surely was not his old self at the Lake Tahoe national governors conference. In his outing with the press, he was abrasive, rough-edged, testy. Absent was the familiar aplomb with which he ordinarily keeps smoothly on top of things. His "star quality" seemed somewhat dimmed, and the cameras paid him less heed.

Connally is not today viewed in a promising light by many of the nation's GOP governors. His new tie to the President as adviser is a handicap, not a blessing.

Mr. Nixon's earlier praise of Connally's abilities was obviously designed to boost him as a 1976 prospect. But in using him for his own immediate selfish purposes, the President had to know he was frittering away the political capital he had previously sought to invest in Connally.

So little has been heard of him in recent days that he strikes some observers as a candidate for Where Are They Now? If he helped Mr. Nixon in his new economic moves, the secret was well kept.

As for Agnew, the first two years of the President's second term were to be a time of building party contacts, charting a policy course at least moderately independent of Mr. Nixon, persuading key Republicans of his fitness and his real desire for the presidency.

The President's continuing dilemmas over Watergate make any even tentative gestures of independence inappropriate right now. Loyalty has to be Agnew's key.

Yet too frequent expressions of such support tend to bind him closer and diminish the advantage he has from being widely regarded as totally removed from Watergate. Agnew's need for breathing spells thus delays and muddies his personal buildup endeavors.

Postal service: a progress report

WASHINGTON — With the price of mailing a letter likely to reach 10 cents early next year, the Senate Post Office Committee is taking a hard look at the decline in delivery service.

The results of the postal investigation aren't due to be reported to the Senate until Aug. 31. A progress report, however, has been submitted to Chairman Gale McGee, D-Wyo. Here are the confidential findings:

—The new postal managers put cutting costs ahead of improving service. "At the management level," states the progress report, "a conspicuous over-emphasis of cost-cutting produced severe deterioration in postal service standards."

—In their eagerness to economize, the officials also went on a firing spree before mechanization was ready to replace manpower. "Management," states the report, "erred in cutting back personnel... Management severely underestimated manpower needs."

—"By the Spring of 1973," adds the report, "the overall profile of the postal service was an uneven one. There was evidence of improvement overshadowed by areas of deterioration."

—Nevertheless, Congress hasn't given up on the postal reorganization, which transformed the Post Office Department into an independent government corporation.

"Members were unanimous in not wanting control of the Post Office in the hands of Congress again," declares the report. "There is no indication that a change of heart by the Members has taken place."

Meanwhile, Senate investigators have compiled "a considerable list" of postal bottlenecks, which they would like to investigate. These include "the general post offices at New York, Chicago, Oakland-San Francisco, Detroit, Cleveland, Philadelphia, Atlanta, Houston, Columbus, Ohio, and others."

Regional hearings

"The staff will be making trips (to these postal centers) following the July 4 recess and during August," according to the interim report.

This will be followed by regional hearings in "some of the problem areas" and a "final set of wrap-up public hearings in Washington with the Postmaster General."

"The purpose here is to pull all of the strings together before attempting final evaluation."

BIBLE EMBEZZLEMENT: The Justice Department has now confirmed, in sordid detail, our charges against ex-Rep. J. Irving Whalley, R-Pa., including the astonishing fact that he used illegal kickback money to purchase gift bibles for constituents.

A church elder and former United Nations delegate, Whalley was exposed by us in September 1971 as the architect of one of the most peculiar kickback schemes that ever flourished on Capitol Hill.

Justice Department sleuths in Pittsburgh and Washington, supported by painstaking FBI work, discovered that the former congressman required his aides to buy handsome bibles out of their own pockets and pass them out to voters in his district as if they came from Whalley.

FOREIGN NEWS

Europe fears U.S. troop withdrawal

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

European nations suspect the Soviet Union of preparing to blackmail them through vast superiority in conventional arms and the United States of running a protection racket as the world's greatest nuclear power.

They know the publicly announced details of the things on which President Nixon and Soviet party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev reached agreement, but it's the things they suspect they do not know that makes them nervous and irritable.

The agreement on prevention of nuclear war is a case in point.

The Europeans fear it opens the way for the United States to reduce its defensive commitment to Europe and at the same time exposes Europe to the threat of vastly superior Soviet strength in conventional warfare.

They also suspect that Brezhnev and Nixon reached some kind of private agreement on reduction of forces and that Nixon fully intends to withdraw some U.S. troop strength from Europe, even if only 10 per cent, to appease critics in Congress.

This belief persists despite specific denials by presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger and his assertion that the United States never would negotiate away the safety of its European allies.

The French, as the most suspicious of the United States' European allies, also suspect that, despite other specific denials, the two leaders may have agreed on some new approach to Mideast strife, an area of increasing importance due to the world energy crisis.

Similar suspicions are held by Israel and the Arabs but that is another story.

These are the outstanding issues which in effect have forced the United States' NATO allies into a review of NATO's monetary, economic, political and military position as suggested by Kissinger in a speech last April.

That was the speech in which Kissinger suggested a "New Atlantic Charter," which he said should be ready for signing when Nixon visits Europe this fall.

France rejected the idea outright and Britain and West Germany greeted it coolly, first on grounds that no review of NATO objectives was necessary, second on grounds that Europe had not yet reached a state of unity that made such a sweeping statement possible, and third on grounds that the United States was trying arbitrarily to link economic and monetary problems with the question of Western defenses.

That is exactly what the United States was attempting to do and what it has now done, at least in the preliminary stages.

The Dutch have been the first to respond with specific proposals. Among other things, the Dutch plan would pledge the alliance to seek solutions to the problems outlined in the Kissinger speech.

Giving specific voice to European fears was Belgium's new foreign minister, Renslaet Van Elslande. He urged France as a nuclear power to come up with a plan for Europe's independent defense—a plan which he said is necessary "to insure that problems which concern us directly are treated with our full participation."

LETTERS FROM P-B READERS

As others see it letters

No fault insurance

I was very much impressed with the sophistication and insight shown in your editorial of April 11 on the subject of No Fault Insurance.

Last year, when the trial bar pointed out the dangerous effects of the various "medical threshold" plans of No Fault insurance, they were accused of being concerned only with their own self-interest.

This year, when they are backing plans of No Fault Insurance that have reduced lawsuits in Delaware to 12 in 14 months, they can no longer be accused of being only interested in their "self interest," so the insurance industry has changed the definition — now they apparently are merely stupid and are interested only in "phony no fault."

Apparently, "phony no fault" is that which does not make the insurance companies rich by forcing people to buy something they don't need, as well as taking away their rights by eliminating their right to seek full compensation against the negligent driver.

The insurance industry is trying to develop the perfect insurance policy.

One that collects a larger premium while providing virtually no benefits.

It is encouraging to me to see that your paper has recognized the problems inherent in the slogan "no fault insurance" and has backed a plan that suggests no fault coverage without restricting the right to sue. While we are backing a plan that restricts the right to sue for no fault benefits already received, we are also willing to accept a plan that eliminates any restriction on the right to sue.

Your paper has done a great service to its readers, and it's interesting to note that there probably is not one major paper left in California which has backed a threshold plan of No Fault Insurance in the past 60 days. There are at least 10 papers which have given great support to plans such as the Mills Bill or the Foran Bill, both of which are based on the experience of Delaware.

When the press alerts its readers, the public disenchantment with an insurance company concept is inevitable. The last Mervin Field Poll showed No Fault with a 57 per cent acceptance factor, and my guess would be that it is probably less now, and that isn't bad, considering the fact that the acceptance factor just a year or so ago was closer to 85 per cent.

Complex problems remain complex, but your editorial points the path that the trial bar is willing to follow, whether it affects our self interest or not. — Herbert Hafif, Legislative Consultant, California Trial Lawyers Assn.

Gossip for today

Some things stranger than all things are: To dream the impossible dream, for instance, is by that very statement impossible. But when it comes to super claims and impossible statements, we Americans are second to none. For it is one of our national characteristics, to hear us tell it, that nothing is impossible. And right here in Pomona we have evidence to prove it. A hair stylist claims to be "a little bit better than the very best." Oh well, maybe he is a former Marine and as any Marine will you: "The difficult we do immediately; the impossible takes a little longer."

INSIDE REPORT

Nixon's top aides could destroy him

WASHINGTON — Trying to chart President Nixon's strategy for surviving Watergate, his advisers are confronting this tormenting dilemma: how can he disengage from former lieutenants H.R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman without dangerously antagonizing them.

That's because the real, though long-shot, threat to Mr. Nixon is seen in Washington and San Clemente as coming not from John Mitchell's testimony before the Ervin committee this week but from later appearances by the President's two loyal intimates, Haldeman and Ehrlichman. Mr. Nixon must avoid being linked tightly to the Watergate cover-up, essentially a White House and campaign committee plot that ex-campaign manager Mitchell apparently knew little about. So, it is Haldeman and Ehrlichman who could finally destroy their chief with a few moments of testimony, improbable though that might seem.

One close Nixon adviser gives this appraisal of the situation: there is no way Haldeman and Ehrlichman, praised by Mr. Nixon May 22 as paragons of virtue, can avoid indictment. The President, therefore, dare not tie his defense to theirs. But neither dare he blame them for the scandal for fear of a murderous backlash from them. He must continue to target John W. Dean III as the cover-up conspirator.

Blunder made by counsel

The memorandum given the Senate a week ago by White House counsel Fred Buzhardt clearly violated that strategy by predicating the President's innocence on the Haldeman-Ehrlichman defense. Usually tight-lipped presidential aides were voluble in bemoaning the blunder.

"One thing I know about John Dean," a knowledgeable Nixon aide told us, "is that he never did anything without orders from Haldeman and Ehrlichman." Thus, he reasons, the Buzhardt memo's fatal flaw is its attack on Dean while simultaneously accepting the Haldeman-Ehrlichman defense. Indeed, Buzhardt's chief in the counsel's office, Leonard Garment, let it be known he was most unhappy about the memorandum's underlying thesis.

Some Republicans outside the White House believe the memorandum reflected the influence of Haldeman-Ehrlichman holdovers clinging to their jobs on the presidential staff. But inside the White House, it is attributed more to incompetence and confusion, legacies of the Watergate crisis. "This is just lawyerly stupidity," says one non-lawyer on the White House staff.

But if Haldeman and Ehrlichman are not to be defended, they are surely not to be attacked. Dean, expert on White House intrigues, has said privately that the two former chief lieutenants would turn on the President if he repudiated them. That view is shared by several former White House aides who believe that fear alone would stop the President from accusing Haldeman and Ehrlichman of wrongdoing.

Younger staffers at the White House, so incessantly lectured by Haldeman and Ehrlichman on the imperatives of loyalty, cannot believe that would abandon their own teachings even to save their skins. Haldeman in particular, his ties with the President older and closer than Ehrlichman's, is regarded by former subordinates as a Nixon loyalist to the bitter end.

But the President's advisers are taking no chances — as ex-special counsel Charles W. Colson is showing by his television talk-show defense of the President (and incidentally himself). His friends report he believes Haldeman and Ehrlichman, never high in his affection, cannot save themselves. Yet, while lashing mercilessly at Dean, Colson coolly disregards Haldeman and Ehrlichman.

But can the President possibly ignore whether his two alter egos were or were not deeply involved in illegal activity? The temporary answer seems to be yes, by a plea of ignorance.

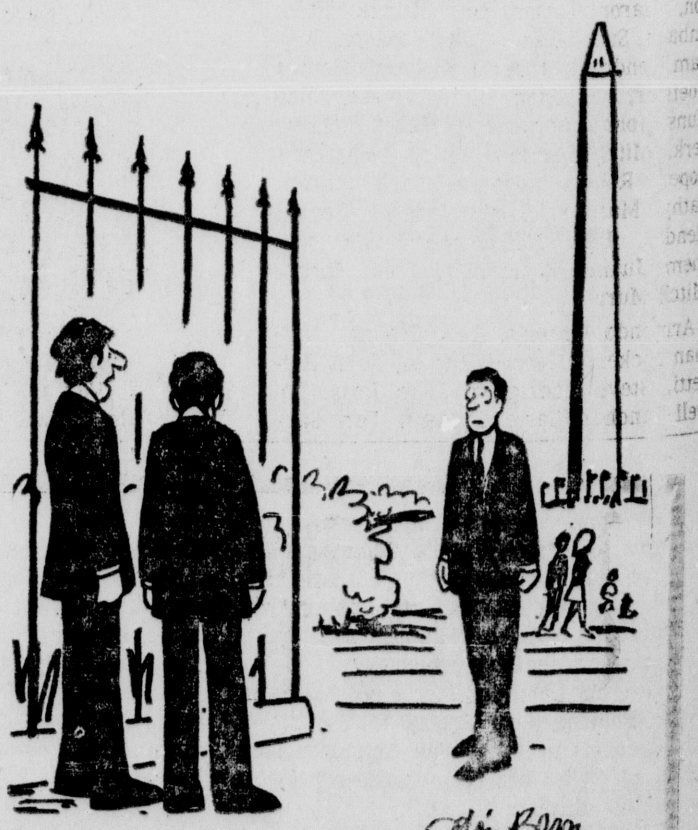

Colson repeats story

In the wake of his unfortunate memo, Buzhardt was telling newsmen that the White House is simply confused about the Watergate facts. Colson says again and again the President still does not know what is going on. The White House counsel's office complains it lacks resources to get to the bottom of Watergate now that the Justice Department has been made virtually independent of presidential direction.

Even Nixon loyalists find it hard to swallow the idea of total presidential ignorance about what his own staff was doing. That lame defense also confirms frequent criticism, previously denied by the White House, that Mr. Nixon has been isolated not only from the outside world but from his own staff's operations.

A defense based on ignorance cannot last forever. Sooner or later, Mr. Nixon will have to publicly judge the two to whom he delegated unprecedented power. If he exonerates them, he risks sharing their fate. If he indicts them, the values of loyalty which became such a cult in happier days of Haldeman and Ehrlichman will be given a test of fire.

Contests will promote Chino 'Meals on Wheels'

CHINO — John Gaffney, formerly food services director at Chino General Hospital, has volunteered to sponsor two contests for the Chino Meals on Wheels.

Gaffney, who is now on the staff of Dobbs House, Inc., as western regional food services director in charge of the hospital division, will personally donate the cost of trophies and prizes for poster and emblem contests to promote the project.

Gary Farr, personnel director at Chino General will assist Gaffney in conducting the contests.

The poster contest is open to all children in grades one through four in the Chino Unified School District. These posters will be used throughout the community to promote the program which will serve hot noon meals to the elderly, handicapped and shut-ins Monday through Friday.

Posters will be judged on originality, appeal and ability to sell the Meals on Wheels.

The emblem contest is open to all students in grades five through 12. The winning emblem will be the official emblem of the program to be used on stationery, brochures and other publicity.

Posters and emblem designs are to be delivered by Friday to the personnel office at the hospital, 5451 Walnut Ave.

In August about 60 volunteers will be recruited to deliver the meals prepared by the hospital's dietary department. Service is scheduled to begin about Sept. 10.

Persons desiring service should contact the Meals on Wheels program through the Chino Council of Social Services 628-5111 or Charlotte Bricker, 628-4657. A volunteer will call at the applicant's home to help fill out the form to be given to a committee for consideration. Service to new applicants begins on Mondays. Applicants pay in advance on a two-or four-week basis.

Sea World, zoo trips scheduled

ONTARIO — The Ontario-Upland YMCA will sponsor a weekend trip to Sea World and the San Diego Zoo for youths 8 and older Saturday and Sunday, according to Dick Babington, associate executive director.

The trip will include transportation, entry into Sea World and the zoo, meals, and a campout in San Diego.

Babington said that space is limited, and urged interested persons to contact the YMCA at 986-5847 immediately.

The Y also announced that guitar classes for beginners and intermediates will begin Tuesday. Classes will be held Tuesday and Thursday evenings for three weeks. The beginner's session will run from 6:30 to 7:30, and the intermediate class from 7:45 to 8:45.

Chaffey picks 3 delegates

ALTA LOMA — Three members of Chaffey College's Chapter 431 have been selected as delegates to the 47th annual conference of the California School Employees Association, slated for Aug. 6-10 in San Diego.

They are Ernest Sampson of Ontario, chapter vice president; Kay Weller of Ontario, chapter secretary and division secretary at the college; and John B. Martinez of Cucamonga, operations foreman at the college.

In addition, Lou Castro, chapter president and a regional representative, will attend as a state officer.

An estimated 2,000 delegates and visitors from more than 600 association chapters will be taking part in the conference.

2 newspapers bought by Donrey

POMONA — The Donrey Media Group, owner of the Progress-Bulletin, has purchased The Carmel Pine Cone and the Carmel Valley Outlook.

The two weekly newspapers have a combined circulation of 6,780.

Tom Lemmon has been appointed general manager of both papers.

He was circulation consultant to Donrey's western newspaper division and circulation manager briefly for the Progress-Bulletin.

"We feel the growth potential in this beautiful Carmel area of California is unlimited," said Fred Smith, executive vice president of Donrey's western newspaper division.

"We are proud to be a part of these two communities and look forward to serving them with the finest newspapers possible."

Donald W. Reynolds is president of the Donrey Media Group, which has its headquarters in Fort Smith, Ark., and owns 41 properties in nine states.

New toll switching service scheduled by phone co.

General Telephone of California has created a toll operations department to oversee its entry into the long distance call switching business in 1975.

The department will be responsible for two new computerized electronic toll switching centers to be built in Ontario and Palm Springs in the next seven years.

The multi-million dollar centers will serve Covina, Indio, Monrovia, Ontario, Palm Springs, Redlands, San Bernardino and other high desert communities.

Jack Curran, former manager of the firm's electronic tandem switching group, has been named director of toll operations.

General's first ultra-modern toll switching system is scheduled to go into service at Long Beach in 1975, followed by a second installation at Santa Monica in 1976.

The Long Beach electronic tandem switching system will be the first of its kind in the United States and will be capable of handling 200,000 telephone calls an hour.

Glass meeting set Thursday

MONTCLAIR — The Depression Glass Society of Montclair will hold a meeting Thursday at the Montclair Library beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Co-chairing the meeting will be Mr.

and Mrs. Bob Morris, who will also display their favorite patterns of glassware.

Members and guests are invited to attend and bring glassware for display and trade.

Classes planned for first aid

ONTARIO — The American Red Cross will sponsor a first aid instructor training course and a standard first aid class for men and women at the Ontario Fire Station No. 1.

The 15-hour instructor training course is open to anyone carrying a current advanced first aid card. The class will meet every Tuesday and Thursday evening beginning this week through July 19 from 6 to 9:30 p.m. There is no charge for the course.

The standard first aid class will be held every Monday for three weeks beginning July 16. Class time will be from 6 to 9 p.m. The class is free, but students must buy their own book.

Capt. Joe Piscione will teach the course. For additional information, persons may contact the Red Cross at 986-6651.

Innovative Chino school

Glenmeade plan 'opens up' ideas

By MAE TATE
P-B Staff Writer

CHINO — The "most precious commodity one can offer a child is education and the world of learning and perceiving."

This is the philosophy of Principal Sam Burton and the staff at Glenmeade School in guiding the open space program that left them convinced of success as the school year ended.

"Open space is just another approach to learning. You see, there's no one way to teach. Any way you can find to turn kids on, you do. Open space means no walls, strictly open space. You can run a traditional or innovative program with it, depending upon what the staff is comfortable with," explained Burton recently.

Re-tracing the history of the open space concept in Chino, the principal explained that Supt. Royce Lapp had wanted something new and different that would effectively reach the children. Glenmeade was selected for the innovation because it was "the only place still left to go somewhere different."

When subdivision activity caused the increase in student population to justify completion of Glenmeade, Burton, Lapp and other district officials traveled to various school districts in Los Angeles and Orange counties, North Dakota and Colorado to explore possibilities.

First meeting

In the first meeting with the architects, Neptune and Thomas of Pasadena, the question of switching the traditional structure into open space was discussed.

"After we got down to actual rough draft plans, this is when I started coffee klatches with parents in the Sleepy Hollow Glenmeade and ranch areas at least once a week. This effort was so parents would know about the changes we were getting ready to make," Burton stated.

"Something new always creates fear. But in working with parents and inviting them into the school these fears slowly began to fade. The parent is essential . . . The community has to be conditioned before you go off on any innovative program. Else you'll have people marching on you and everything else," he continued.

"The main thing was out of the total experience. Parents really wanted to help. We sent out questionnaires to find out the talents of each parent, formed phone pools to call parents. Parents are now used as resource people to help reduce the teacher load."

Flexible program

Lapp gave the Glenmeade principal "flexibility and freedom to design the program." The principal in turn looked to his staff to help create a program that would accommodate the total school environment of student, teacher and parent.

Small sections were removed from several adjoining rooms "in order to determine effectiveness. The opening provided the flexibility of moving kids from this classroom to that room, getting teachers used to the idea of moving kids back and forth and getting teachers and children used to working together," Burton stated.

Jean Reidy, now transferred to Los Serranos School to "re-enforce the program there," volunteered her class as the experimental section with parents coming in as teacher's aides.

"During this first phase, we asked for a minimum day once a week so teachers would have the opportunity to plan. During this session of time, we planned a program which the teachers would feel comfortable with."

Mixed grades

"We mixed levels (grades) one hour a day in five learning centers—muscle development, coordinating, reading and library, phonetic and word attack, creative writing, and listening and following directions. All this is zeroed in on improving the reading skills. We did this one hour a day for at least one semester."

"We were trying to find something workable and something we could slowly get our feet wet with."

"In the second phase we felt we needed an instructional coordinator in order to help keep the program synchronized. Ann Swick, a Miller-Unruh reading specialist, was selected for this role. We also felt we needed an instructional materials technician and named Marilyn Cranston for this. All this was designed to re-enforce the program to go into the second phase."

That second phase created two buildings with the wall's interior completely removed; and the beginning of construction for the completion of the school. During this period, ending the past school year, the fifth and sixth levels were bused to Gird Elementary School "to avoid double sessions and overcrowded conditions." These students will return to Glenmeade in the fall.

No pressure

The Glenmeade staff is as immersed in the program as its principal, probably because all have had a hand in the shaping of the mold.

"No child feels pressured to do work that he's not capable of doing. Yet he can do as much work as he possibly can. It's exciting to see a child doing his own thing. This gives us extra time for discipline and guidance and allows a one-to-one relationship," said teacher Sherrill Medeiros.

Button pointed out that the innovation allows teachers the opportunity to work on their individual talents. "We have strengths and weaknesses. Each teacher can almost be a specialist under this particular setup," he noted.

Mrs. Swick, who transferred from Gird Primary in order to participate in the Glenmeade program, feels Glenmeade "offers many more opportunities for both students and teachers."

The completed school provides for a large resource center with modern audio-visual equipment and instructional aides. The stage can be cordoned off for a "quiet area."

Quiet area

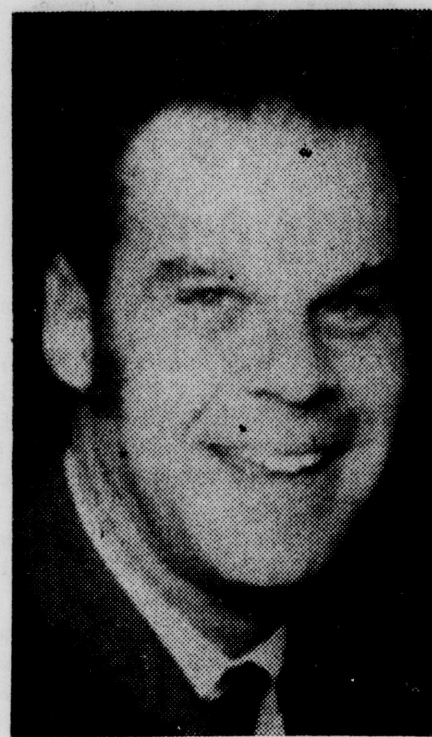

"Quietness is not a criteria for learning. There are many experiences going on while learning in here. But if I or a teacher want to discuss something with a parent, there is a quiet area for such without actually leaving the room," commented the principal.

The amphitheater is designed for those interested in drama, dancing, art classes, speech and debate teams and community activities.

The landscaping has been donated by parents, teachers and students who contribute to a school beautification fund, local nurseryman Robert Richards, and the Glenmeade PTA.

What's the most important part of the program to Burton and his teachers?

"That the learning experience is going continuously," he smiled.

SHERWIN GROSSMAN

Grossman named to United Way

ONTARIO — Sherwin Grossman of Ontario has been named cultivation committee chairman for the West End United Way Campaign.

Grossman, the president of Bestile Manufacturing Co., has been active in several community activities. He is the past president of the Ontario Rotary Club, a board member of the Ontario-Upland YMCA, and a member of the National Conference of Christians and Jews. He has received the latter organization's Brotherhood Citation. He has also served on the Ontario Community Relations Board and the San Antonio Hospital Foundation Board.

When you're hot, you're hot

Stockton eyes more titles

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Dave Stockton believes when you're hot, you're hot, and that's why after his $26,000 Greater Milwaukee Open victory Sunday he said he expects to win another golf tourney "very shortly."

"I knew what I wanted to do today," the 31-year-old Bernardino, Calif., golfer said. "I wanted to go out there and blow 'em off the map."

It wasn't quite that easy as Homero Blancas and Hubie Green made a determined effort in the final 18 to catch up before falling short by one stroke apiece.

Stockton shot a 73—his only round over par in the tourney to finish at 276, 12 under par. Most of his subpar golf came in the second round when he fired a sizzling nine under 63 for a course record and the second lowest card on the tour this year.

Blancas and Green each closed with 63 for an 11 under 277. Bob Goalby, who led the first round with a 65 and trailed Stockton by only two strokes going into the final round blew his chance with a triple bogey and finished at 279.

"This was a very big win for me," Stockton said. "And you can expect another one very shortly because when I get going, I keep going for a while."

The top prize raised his earnings to $75,727 this year surpassing the $6,342 he won for all of 1972. He hadn't won a tournament since August, 1971 in Massachusetts and his best finish this year was second at Houston, one stroke behind leading money winner Bruce Crampton.

The check moved him from 29th to 13th place on the pro tour money list. None of the top 13 money winners was entered here. Most of them chose to take the week off to prepare for the more prestigious British Open in Scotland this week.

Blancas and Green received $12,025 apiece from the $130,000 purse. Blancas' check moved him into 15th place on the list with a $72,207 total.

"I expected to win and I played that way," said Stockton. "I played too conservatively Saturday so today I decided not to play safe. I wanted to go out there and get the job done, not have somebody do it for me. It didn't exactly work that way but I honestly thought I would shoot in the 60s."

'60 Olympic coach dies

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (UPI) — Briggs Hunt, head coach of the 1960 U.S. Olympic Greco-Roman wrestling team, has died at St. John's Hospital here following heart surgery. He was 64.

Hunt, a 1934 graduate of UCLA, served as the Bruins' head wrestling coach for 30 years until his resignation in 1965. He remained in the UCLA physical education department until his death Sunday.

Hunt is survived by his widow, Eleanor, two daughters and a sister.

Billie Jean 'owns' Wimbledon

By GREGORY JENSEN

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — It began in turmoil and controversy. It lacked sparkle, like flat champagne. It ran overtime and ended in anticlimax.

Wimbledon, 1973, pulled near record crowds as if nothing were amiss. But by the time Billie Jean King served the final point Sunday, the word for the 87th All-England Lawn Tennis championships was "strange."

But not for Billie Jean King. She made the tournament her own.

That last ball the 29-year-old champion from Hilton Head, S.C., served was a winner. It brought her her third title, a triple she also pulled off in 1967.

She won her fifth women's singles title Saturday in straight sets over Chris Evert, the 18-year-old tennis whiz from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., in the first All-American Wimbledon final since 1957.

She won the women's doubles for the ninth time, teaming as four times before with Rosemary Casals of San Francisco, and downing the woman she partnered to last year's victory, Betty Stove of Holland, who played this year with France's soft-touch artist, Francoise Durr.

Then Mrs. King wrapped up the mixed doubles title for the third time, paired as in 1967 and 1971 with Owen Davidson of Australia.

What made this Wimbledon strange was not the women, whose top names and well-matched play helped run tournament attendance figures to the second-highest ever, 299,742.

It was the pre-tournament boycott announcement by 73 members of the Association of Tennis Professionals, the game's top men, which turned Wimble-

NEW YORK (UPI) — Two dozen newsmen armed with pens, notebooks, tape recorders and familiar questions clustered in front of locker 44 in the sauna-like Shea Stadium visitors dressing room Sunday.

Atlanta had finished beating the Mets, 4-2, 15 minutes earlier on a soggy, 95-degree day. Most of the Braves already had showered, eager to escape to anywhere where there'd be air-conditioning. But the newsmen were there to talk to one man, Hank Aaron, and he'd be a little late. He was on television at the time.

When the "Hammer" finally walked in, he was immediately engulfed in a tide of bodies and questions. Aaron had just stroked his 695th and 696th career homers, leaving him only 19 short of breaking Babe Ruth's record, and the newsmen wanted to know about the pressure, the kinds of pitches he hit, the mail he was getting, the secretaries he needed, how he's feeling, and on and on until he had no more to say.

That's kind of what life's like now for Aaron as he approaches baseball's most hallowed record. He's on center stage in every city he plays in and one might think he'd like to retreat, step out of the limelight a bit and just play baseball.

But Hank Aaron, 39 years old, is having the time of his life.

"Sometimes it's tiring but basically I'm enjoying it," Aaron said. "There was a time when nobody paid too much attention and I'm not about to go chasin' people away now. No, I'm having a good time."

"Once the game starts there's no pressure on me at all. It's nothing I can't handle."

Aaron is one of those rare players who has been able to take his accomplishments in stride. He tries to accommodate the fans who write him, the press TV and radio. If all the commotion wearing him thin, it's hard to tell.

"The great thing is he conforms," said Atlanta Manager Eddie Mathews, who between 1954-1966 combined with Aaron to set a record of 863 home runs teammates. "He doesn't take the least bit advantage of his superstar status. He's out early to the ballpark and helps me out in a lot of different ways."

Aaron helped out Phil Niekro Sunday with three RBIs on his 22nd and 23rd homers—both of which landed in almost the exact same spot just inside the left field foul pole. Niekro limited the Mets to eight hits to gain his ninth victory in 13 decisions this year.

Dusty Baker also aided the Braves cause with his seventh homer in the second. Former Brave George Stone was the victim of all three homers.

Think positive says Willie D.

By DON BRADLEY
P-B Staff Writer

LOS ANGELES — Willie Davis has become one of the foremost proponents of positive thinking.

"No team can beat us if we all concentrate on winning," he told writers grouped around him Sunday in the Dodger clubhouse.

Davis had just slammed a 1-1 pitch by Dave Giusti over the rightfield fence for his 12th home run of the season to give the Dodgers a 12-inning, 3-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates and a sweep of the three-game series.

Prior to that the Dodger captain had gone hitless in five at-bats and had fanned in the ninth inning. "Why didn't you do that (hit the homer) in the ninth?" inquired a grinning writer.

Davis grinned back. "I don't know why I didn't do it in the ninth inning," he replied, "but the big thing is I DID it."

The homer, a shot that was labelled home run from the time it left Davis' bat, came after Giusti had retired 12 straight Dodger batters and was the only hit he allowed in the three extra innings.

It also hung the fine reliever with his first loss in 11 games dating back to May 27, 1972. He won six straight during the remainder of the regular season in '72 and was 5-0 this year with a 1.48 earned run average going into Sunday's contest.

The win was a big one for the Dodgers. It enabled them to retain their 5½-game lead in the Western Division after all the other contenders had already won.

It also brought them to the .500 mark (3-3) on the current homestand.

"When I come up in a situation like that," he said, "I'm definitely thinking home run. I'm trying to hit that ball out. I'm not thinking about anything else. If I get my pitch I know I can get that ball out."

The pitch he got, he said, was a palm-ball, "that didn't do much."

"I think Giusti tried to pull it back after he let it go," smiled the lithe centerfielder.

Davis proved again that concentration pays off. "In a situation like that, I don't think about him (Giusti). I'm thinking about me," he said.

Pete Richert (2-1) got the win after pitching the Pirate half of the 12th. Richert succeeded Jim Brewer who hurled the ninth, 10th, and 11th innings and who gave up the tying run in the ninth.

Tommy John started and was removed for a pinch hitter when the Dodgers, leading 2-1, loaded the bases with two out in the eighth. Von Joshua was called out on three pitches to end the threat, but John supported manager Walter Alston's move.

"With a team like Pittsburgh you have to make the move to try and win," he said while gnawing on one fudgecicle and holding another clutched in his right hand.

"He (Alston) was trying to get insurance runs. The odd part of it was, John continued, "I ran into the same identical situation last year in Pittsburgh, winning 2-1 being taken out for a pinchhitter and we didn't get any runs. I think we eventually lost in 10 innings after they had tied it in the ninth at Three Rivers Stadium (in Pittsburgh)."

John had held the hard-hitting Pirates to a run and five hits through eight innings.

Alston revealed when he had used Joshua (.245) rather than Manny Mota (.342).

"I would have used Manny," he said, "but Manny pulled a muscle in yesterday's (Saturday's) game. But Joshua swings the bat well and is a left-handed hitter. I never would have done it if Brewer and Richert weren't sound."

The Dodgers scored a run in the second on Steve Garvey's hit, a fielder's choice when Richie Hebner couldn't get Bill Russell's tap out of his glove in time to get anybody out, and a single by Steve Yeager. Yeager's fielder's choice in the fourth drove in Willie Crawford after he had a singled and moved to second on Russell's infield hit.

The Bucs scored in the first on a pair of doubles by Dave Cash and Richie Zisk. They tied it in the ninth on singles by Cash and AL Oliver, and Manny Sanguillen's sacrifice fly.

The Dodgers are off today and will return to action Tuesday against St. Louis.

DODGER NOTES — Claude Osteen (10-4), Don Sutton (10-5), and Andy Messersmith (7-6) are slated to face the Cardinals who are tentatively scheduled to counter with ex-Angel Tom Murphy (1-3), Bob Gibson (8-8), and Rich Fulkers (2-0). Fulkers did some pitching in Sunday's game with the Giants which might cause a switch.

Catcher Joe Ferguson will return to the active list for the series with the Cards.

Latest on the four-man pitching rotation (dropping Al Downing) is that it is only until the All-Star break.

Davis now has hit safely in 10 of his last 12 games (19 for 57 . . . 333). . . Garvey has hit in 13 of his last 16 games, going 23 for 51 (.451) and increasing his average from .228 to .333. He has scored eight runs, hit five doubles and a homer and has driven in three runs.

Halos' Singer seeking three wins a month

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Bill Singer isn't looking beyond his next start.

Singer got victory No. 14 as the California Angels swept a doubleheader at Cleveland Sunday and then said: "Every time you look too far ahead, you're in trouble. I'm just trying to get three wins a month."

A 20-game winner with the Los Angeles Dodgers in 1969, the 29-year-old right-hander improved his record to 14-4.

The Angels, who open a three-game series against the Baltimore Orioles here tonight, backed Singer with a 10-hit attack in the opener for a come-from-behind 10-4 victory. They took the nightcap 5-3 in 10 innings.

"I hope he (Singer) tells you how his control got better when we got that 10th run," kidded Angel Manager Bobby Winckles, whose team now is 4-2 on a 13-game road trip.

Singer walked four batters in the first three innings but none thereafter. He struck out seven and now has beaten every team in the American League except Boston. He yet has to face the Red Sox.

"I really felt bad the first four innings," said Singer. "I thought I was on the ropes for sure. But I knew we were going to come back and score some runs."

Trailing 3-1 after two innings, California scored four runs in the third inning, and then broke it open with a five-run fifth.

Vada Pinson and Bob Oliver homered in the opener and Richie Scheinblum hit a two-run homer in the 10th inning to beat the Indians in the second game. The Angels finished the day in second place in the Western Division two games behind Oakland.

"I feel like I've been given a rest," smiled Scheinblum, who spent the previous three games on the bench. "As long as we keep winning, let's just keep the team out there we can keep winning with."

Benny Parsons, Chevy winners at Bristol 500

BRISTOL, Tenn. (UPI) — Benny Parsons and Chevrolet were the big winners in Sunday's Volunteer 500 stock car race at Bristol International Speedway.

Parsons scored an easy seven-lap victory and collected $6,500, while the first five finishers all drove Chevrolets. The victory also was the fifth straight at Bristol for Chevrolet.

L. D. Ottinger of Newport, Tenn., finished second, followed by Cecil Gordon of Horse Shoe, N.C., Lennie Pond of Petersburg, Va., and J. D. McDuffie of Sanford, N.C.

Parsons, of Ellerbe, N.C., started in the outside pole position and ran in the top five throughout the race, averaging 91.713 miles per hour on the .533-mile oval. He took control of the race after 347 laps when Bobby Allison of Hueytown, Ala., and Cale Yarborough of Timmonsville, S.C., wrecked their Chevrolets.

Allison was running second following a routine pit stop when he lost control going into the third turn of the high-banked track. He crashed into a guardrail and was hit by the trailing Yarborough. Yarborough had been out for 100 laps and Allison for 81.

Bobby Isaac, driving a Ford, ran in the top five until he had mechanical difficulties and was forced from the race. Richard Petty, driving a Dodge, never was a factor in the race. He lost four laps with a flat tire early in the race and was forced from competition when other problems developed. He later drove about 75 laps in relief of Gordon.

Parsons was relieved at the wheel during the hot, muggy afternoon by John Utsman of Bluff City, Tenn. Utsman drove about 180 laps.

The victory was only the second NASCAR Grand National win for Parsons. His other victory came during the 1970 season at South Boston, Va.

Italian papers demanding halt

ROME (UPI) — Italian newspapers today demanded a ban on motorcycle racing on the super-fast Monza track where mass collisions have claimed five lives in seven weeks.

Three young Italian amateurs died Sunday in a crash on the same curve where Finnish ace Jarno Saarinen and Italy's Renzo Pasolini were killed May 20. Motorcyclists complained at Saturday's trials that the curve was too risky because they could not slow down sufficiently to take it safely after building up to speeds of 135 to 145 m.p.h. on the straightaway.

"Why don't we dare to call it murder?" the newspaper La Stampa of Turin asked today under a bannerline: "A tragedy that should have been avoided."

It said the course was identical to the one on which Saarinen and Pasolini died, safety precautions were identical or poorer and the asphalt was in worse condition.

"Making one mistake is a thing that can happen... Repeating an error of this kind is a crime," La Stampa said.

It said it was "simply disgusting to learn that organizers wanted to resume racing at all costs in quest of who knows how many more deaths."

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — "It is now clear that Freeze 2 has not packed the psychological punch that President Nixon and his chief advisers had believed or hoped it would," says Argus Weekly Staff Report. The letter says equity prices have continued to flounder, interest rates have moved to new highs, the dollar has hit new lows, and Freeze 2 has raised fears of a food shortage. "In short, the public's apparent love affair with controls is dying a quick death," it adds.

"The market seems to be in an excellent technical position to mount a rally soon and it does not look like it will take much to get one going," according to E. F. Hutton. The firm advises the investor to take heart on the basis of recent heavier odd-lot shorting, the relatively good showing by the Dow Jones transportation average in past day, and the small number of issues on the new low list.

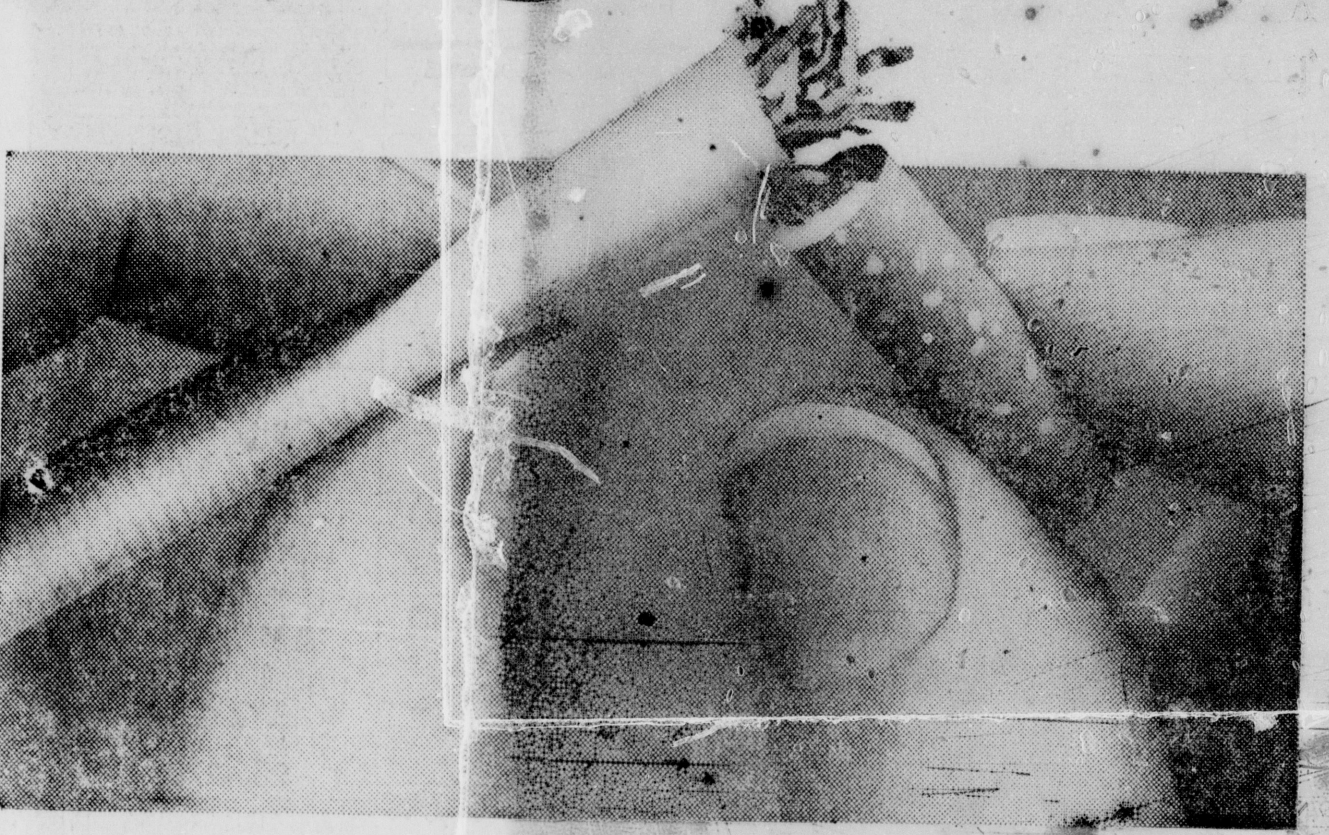

The Federal Reserve Board's decision to raise the discount rate to 7 per cent and the reserve requirements on demand deposits over $2 million by 1/2 per cent was taken "because the money supply numbers are continuing to behave erratically," says A. G. Becker. Co.'s Market Economics. The letter says the money supply rates for the first six months of the year were far above the Fed target of 5 1/2 per cent for 1973. "The two Fed actions were not the result of accelerating inflation rates nor even doubts about the efficacy of Phase IV," it says.

Guerrilla chief seriously ill
NICOSIA, Cyprus (UPI) — Gen. George Grivas, the veteran guerrilla leader who is trying to overthrow President Archbishop Makarios and unite Cyprus with Greece, is seriously ill in a clinic, the English-language newspaper Cyprus Mail said today.

The newspaper said Grivas, who has been in hiding since his return to Cyprus from Greece two years ago, was in a private clinic in Limassol recovering from a serious heart attack he suffered about two months ago.

Take away your filter and what've you got?

A lot of brands are talking about their filters lately.

That's all well and good. The filter. The cigarette. (We know. We give you the most famous one of all: the Kent Micronite filter.)

But how many cigarettes have something to say about the other end? The tobacco end. The part that gives you what you smoke for... taste.

One brand that has plenty to say is Kent.

24 quality tobaccos are blended into each Kent. And we go to 3 continents, 4 countries and 10 states to find them.

We also insist upon the lower-leaf tobaccos for Kent. They're a lot milder than the leaves at the top of the plant.

In fact, we place as much importance on our tobacco as we do on our famous filter.

Because without either one, we couldn't give you the mild, smooth taste that makes Kent what it is: America's quality cigarette.

Mild, smooth taste. Micronite filter.
Kent. America's quality cigarette.

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

Cold or warm, John Mitchell is a man at bay

By United Press International
A critic once described John Newton Mitchell as a cold man. His wife has an entirely different view.
The critic said that "when you first meet John Mitchell, he seems cold on the surface, but when you get to know him, you realize that is only the tip of the iceberg."
But Mitchell's wife, Martha, once said this about her husband: "He is the warmest man in the world and I don't think I've ever seen another man in my life with what I call bedroom eyes. He looks at you, and he just penetrates you. He is soft, sweet and cuddly ..."

There is as wide a gap—from heights to depths—in Mitchell's fortunes in recent years. On Dec. 11, 1968, when President Nixon named him attorney general, Nixon described Mitchell as "a man of superb judgment, a man who knows how to pick people and to lead them and to inspire them with a quiet confidence and poise and dignity." In Nixon's first term, Mitchell wielded great power in the administration.
Today Mitchell is a man at bay, indicted in New York, a key witness in the Senate Watergate Committee's probe into the most spectacular political scandal in American history, accused of having played a major role in that scandal.

Mitchell was born Sept. 5, 1913, in Detroit, Mich., the son of a businessman. His family later moved to Long Island N.Y., and he was graduated from Jamaica High School and attended Fordham University and its law school during the depression years. He then became a specialist in the New Deal's federal public housing program.
During World War II, he served three years as a naval officer, commanding squadrons of torpedo boats in the Pacific. Among the junior officers under his command was John F. Kennedy, skipper of PT109. Mitchell once remarked that he knew the future President only slightly.

Mitchell went on to a Wall Street legal career, where he became an authority on municipal bonds and got to know another future President—Richard Nixon—very well.
He managed his law partner's 1968 presidential campaign and came to Washington with Nixon as a "law and order" attorney general.
"I know that he is a strong man, a man who is devoted as I am, and as I found the American people were in this campaign, to waging an effective war against crime in this country" Nixon said on that December day he announced Mitchell's appointment.

Mitchell quickly became a strong man in the first Nixon administration. He was involved in nearly every crisis—the Abe Fortas case, Kent State, the Haynsworth and Carswell Supreme Court nominations, the massive antiwar demonstrations, school busing, the Pentagon papers case.
He left the Justice Department to manage Nixon's 1972 campaign. Then came the Watergate break-in and his resignation as campaign director under the threat of his wife that she would leave him if he didn't get out of "dirty politics."
On May 21, 1973, he was indicted on 10 counts of perjury, obstruction of justice and conspiracy in the handling of a secret $200,000 presidential campaign donation from financier Robert L. Vesco. He pleaded innocent. Other Watergate hearings witnesses said he helped plan the break-in and participated in its cover-up.

Tall, portly and a pipesmoker, he has looked increasingly gaunt and thin in recent months on the rare occasions he met with newsmen. He has protested his innocence.
"I've never stolen any money," he said at the time of his first indictment. "The only thing I did was to try to get the President re-elected. I never did anything mentally or morally wrong."

Nixon sees popularity dip as result of Watergate in Kansas City stop

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon saw evidence of a drop in his popularity caused by the Watergate scandal Monday when he stopped in Kansas City, Mo., en route back to the White House from California.

Hostile signs appeared in the crowd when he swore in Clarence M. Kelley, the Kansas City police chief, as new director of the FBI.

Some of the signs said: "Impeachment with Honor." "Conspirator or Uninformed Fool?" "Impeach Adolf Nixon." "Honesty, Now More Than Ever."

About 12,000 persons turned out for the ceremony staged in front of the federal building where Nixon, in off-the-cuff remarks, sought to reassure the nation that Watergate disclosures involving the FBI had not shattered the FBI.

"I have often said, and I have visited most of the countries of the world, that the best national law enforcement agency in the world is the Federal Bureau of Investigation," Nixon said.

"It is still the best. And second, I will say that the best national law enforcement agency in the world deserves the best law enforcement officer in the world as its director."

"Chief Kelley is that man, and he is going to demonstrate that to the country," he said.

Although the platform was ready-made for the President's stock "law and order" speech, he shied away from the subject and preferred to stress his accomplishments in ending the Vietnam War and improving relations with China and the Soviet Union.

His references to crime related to "street crimes."

"We can look back, too, and see that in the last year, for the first time in 15 years, we found crime in this country—street crimes that affect the people of Kansas City and every city and town in this country—instead of going up went down, and that is something we want to continue to achieve in the years ahead."

As he spoke a voice yelled out: "What about crime in the White House."

Some 200 young demonstrators, shunted off to the side, booed and chanted "racist pigs have got to go" as the President ticked off a litany of his achievements including the fact that he had ended the draft.

The crowd reaction was unenthusiastic although there was polite applause. Spectators on the street smiled or waved but the turnout did not match Nixon's previous visits to the "Show Me State."

speaking in smaller groups around the country.

Graham fielded numerous questions at the news conference including questions about his current controversial statements in South Africa and the Watergate situation.

Graham admitted he wished he'd never made the remarks in South Africa which drew charges of racism from black religious leaders in the United States. Graham said that rapists should be castrated.

He spent part of Monday meeting with black leaders who had threatened to boycott the crusade and withdraw all support from the crusade if an apology was not made. Apparently Graham was able to patch up his differences with the black leaders, because an announcement was made late Monday that leaders had called off the boycott.

Referring to Watergate, Graham said he hopes the situation will be "clarified" in the near future. Graham has always been a close associate of President Nixon.

He reminded reporters of a statement he made frequently in the past. Graham said there is still, in his opinion, no evidence that the President had anything to do with the affair.

Nixon spoke only eight minutes and then, smiling, worked his way to his limousine. He looked tired, but seemed happy at the outstretched hands from the roped off area, and a shout from one spectator: "Atta Boy, Dick."

But although the President's remarks were veiled, there was no mistaking the meaning of Kelley's remarks following his oath taking.

"I promise to serve only justice and to avoid any other force or influence which hurts the cause of justice," he said.

He also promised to enforce the laws "with the vigor necessary to rid us of the predators who deny us full measure of our rights and freedoms."

Working vacation for Sen. Kennedy

CISCO, Utah (UPI) — Senators Edward Kennedy and John Tunney took a boat trip down the high rapids of the Colorado River in Utah. Kennedy spent part of the time out of the boat floating in the river with only a life jacket.

The trip was a vacation, but the location—the Colorado's Westwater Canyon—is being considered for inclusion in the Wild River Act, a move that would protect the scenic canyon from development.

Kennedy, D-Mass., Tunney, D-Calif., and Rep. William Green, D-Penn., took a six-hour boat ride down a 16-mile section of the high rapids of the canyon Sunday with host Rep. Wayne Owens, D-Utah. They were accompanied by about 20 friends and children.

Kennedy spent part of the time floating in a life jacket and went through several of the milder rapids that way.

Tricia's not in family way--'tis said

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House Monday said rumors that President Nixon's daughter Tricia Cox is pregnant were unfounded. But Tricia herself avoided making a personal response to newsmen's queries on the report.

Pat Nixon's press secretary, Helen MacCaine Smith, said Monday there was "no basis for the report" in the Washington Star-News that Nixon would become a grandfather.

However, when the Nixon family, returning from California, landed at Andrews Air Force Base outside Washington, the Coxes remained aboard while the President and Mrs. Nixon came down the ramp and boarded a helicopter for the White House.

They did not leave the plane until

Congress seeks tighter control over CIA funding

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Spurred by the Watergate scandal, Congress is making a bid to get a tighter grip on the hidden budget of the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) and the rest of the nation's foreign intelligence community.

The Senate Armed Services Subcommittee on Intelligence Operations called CIA Director-designate William E. Colby and other officials into a closed hearing today to begin discussing the agency's budget requirements for the new fiscal year.

It was the first time since the agency was created in 1947 that the subcommittee, acting on its own, has demanded to see the agency's books.

California's top Communist resigns

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Dorothy Healey, 58, long time Communist leader, resigned from the party Monday because of its failure to allow dissent from the ranks, she said.

Mrs. Healey was party chairman for Southern California for 20 years until 1969, when she failed to win reelection. She scored the party for refusing to allow dissent after publicly opposing the Russian invasion of Czechoslovakia. She said she was quitting over

"lack of party democracy" and actions by the national leadership "to compel approval of decisions made without prior discussion among the membership."

"My hatred of capitalism, which degrades and debases all humans, is as intense now as it was when I joined the Young Communist League in 1928," she said. "I remain a communist, albeit without a party."

Ormandy to take first Russ baton

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Eugene Ormandy, director of the Philadelphia Philharmonic Orchestra, will become the first American to conduct a Soviet orchestra outside Russia.

Ormandy announced Monday that he

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — Lindsay Dornbush, who said it was the best part-time job she could find, became the first woman to be inducted into the Virginia National Guard Monday.

Miss Dornbush, a 20-year-old Richmond resident, was sworn in by State Adjutant Gen. William McCadin.

She said she decided to join because she needed a part-time job and that was the best she could hope to find. She said she will use the money she saves in the guard for travel.

Council defends planner in Via Verde controversy

By LENORE WALLACE
P-B Staff Writer

SAN DIMAS — Members of the City Council rehearsed the controversy over zone changes in the Via Verde development Monday night and defended Planning Commission Chairman Gerald Klein after it was charged that his service is a conflict of interest.

Phil Wax, a West Covina businessman and resident of Via Verde, told the City Council that Klein as a builder and developer in San Dimas shouldn't be serving on the Planning Commission.

"He has no business serving on the commission," Wax declared. He said he told Klein that he didn't belong on the commission during the last Planning Commission meeting but that Klein said "I don't want to hear that" and went on to other matters.

Wax said his particular gripe with Klein is that he has abstained from voting on issues in the Via Verde area because he was doing work there. He cited minutes from a commission meeting in 1970 where Klein abstained.

Wax also charged that Klein took the role of the developer (Crow Pacific Development Co.) during a recent commission field trip to the site of two controversial condominium developments on June 20.

Wax said the developer stood by and made little comment while Klein, who he said was wearing construction boots, walked over the development sites with other commissioners explaining the plans and drawings for the developments.

"The developer had very little to say to the commission and when the commission reconvened at City Hall later that evening, the developer showed three slides about the developments and that was it," Wax said. "Klein sold the package for the developer."

City Councilman D. F. Hooper defended Klein and said that to his knowledge the only work Klein has been involved in at Via Verde was tennis courts and a swimming pool in 1970.

"He shouldn't have to abstain from voting because of his work there in 1970," Hooper said.

Mayor Thomas Nuss said he didn't have any knowledge that Klein is or isn't building in Via Verde but he said Klein does an excellent job on the Planning Commission. "It is difficult for me to believe that he sold the commission on anything or that he leads them round."

Nuss, who is an attorney, said a charge of a conflict of interest is a difficult thing to comment on.

Wax at this point told Nuss that John Adams, a commissioner in West Covina, wasn't reappointed to his post because of a job similar to Klein's.

Wax said it difficult to accept West Covina as a criteria for developments for San Dimas. City Atty. Norman Oliver told the City Council that he felt he should caution them on taking evidence on matters that may be used in future appeals on the Via Verde zone cases.

He said the charge of a conflict of interest was an ethical and not a legal question.

He said it was not a statutory conflict of interest.

Oliver also commented on the field trip and said Klein did take the initiative at the site of the developments.

Oliver said this was only natural since Klein was an engineer. "I found nothing to imply that he was selling the developments to other commissioners."

Oliver also commented later in a City Council discussion about two conditional use permits for the La Verne condominiums that will be before the Planning Commission tonight.

There appeared to be some confusion among several council members about why the conditional use permits were being considered at all since the council two weeks ago decided to hold off on second reading of zoning ordinances which would permit construction of the developments.

Oliver said the conditional use permits will not be effective unless the council gives second reading to the ordinances or if the new general plan provides zoning which conforms with the permits. Hearings on the general plan won't be held until September.

Councilman Hooper said he felt the council should hold off on any decision on the zone changes. "I feel very uncomfortable about this situation. We first approved these zone changes in 1970 and during those two years another developer has taken over."

Hooper said he would like to see the matter delayed until after the general plan is completed. Councilman Keith Brogan said he agreed with Hooper.

Upland hikes employee pay 4.8%

UPLAND — The City Council formally approved a cost of living increase of 4.8 per cent for over 50 different classifications of city employees Monday night.

Following an executive session during which the council received a report on the status of continuing negotiations with police personnel, the council unanimously approved a resolution establishing a new five-step salary schedule for various administrative personnel, laborers and firemen.

The new salaries, retroactive to July 1 are the result of several months of negotiations between city officials and representatives of the Upland City Employee's Association, which, unlike last year's discussions, seemed to proceed smoothly and concluded last week with the signing of a six-point memorandum of understanding.

In addition to the percentage increase, the city agreed to adjust salaries to bring them into line with the average salaries of 12 surrounding cities, conduct a salary classification study, and provide additional benefits to firemen including a shorter work week, an additional holiday and an education incentive program.

In other action, Monday night, the council with no discussion unanimously approved resolutions making any salary increases for police and managerial employees retroactive to July 1.

The council also ratified a pay increase for City Atty. Donald Maroney and agreed to allow City Manager Elwin Alder to determine in consultation with the council, the schedule of payments of city funds to various private and civic groups.

L.V. planners in hearing on general plan

LA VERNE — The Planning Commission will begin a public hearing tonight on its proposal to update a general plan that has been in effect since 1963.

The hearing is the last item on a brief agenda at a meeting which starts at 7:30 in the council chambers. Planning Director Chrales Le Gros said if the hearing is not concluded tonight, it will be continued throughout the month.

A similar hearing is expected to be held by the City Council, as provided by law, next month.

The proposed general plan recommends an orderly use of land through a revised zoning plan, provides for open space and parks, and suggests an early California motif as a community theme. The plan is designed for a population of about 30,000.

Le Gros urged all persons interested in the future of the city to attend the public hearings and voice their feelings. He said the hearing will be concluded when every person who appears has had an opportunity to state his position or his problem.

Resolution on homosexuality adopted

It's sinful, but not damning, says church

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Homosexuality is sinful but not necessarily damning, according to a resolution adopted by the 50th Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod.

By a resounding voice vote Monday, the Synod's 1,100 delegates adopted the resolution to "recognize homophile behavior as intrinsically sinful."

The resolution, however, said "The forgiveness of our Lord Jesus Christ" was available to "all sinners who are penitent."

"God's word clearly identifies homophile behavior as immoral and condemns it," the resolution said.

The proposal was submitted by the convention's Committee on Theology and Church Relations in response to a request by the Hyde Park Lutheran Church of Chicago that homosexuals be given full status in the church, including the right to become ordained ministers.

Flora Seefeldt, a lay delegate from Milwaukee, was the most vocal opponent of the resolution during floor debate.

"Are we here to judge people and say that just because someone is a homosexual he is condemned?" she asked in an emotional speech. "I don't think so. Can't we act as Christian brothers?"

Delegates still must resolve the key issue of the synod, whether the Bible must be taken literally or may be interpreted symbolically.

Nothing was decided during more than 90 minutes debate on the question Monday, but at one point some 100 delegates waited to express their views.

"Now the issue here is whether we shall stand on our historic position or permit another to be substituted in its place," said Dr. J. A.O.

Preus, newly re-elected president of the synod.

Preus leads a conservative faction of the church which believes in literal interpretation of the scriptures, while Dr. John H. Tietjen heads a group of moderates who say some Biblical passages must be taken symbolically.

A convention committee, appointed by Preus, has submitted a resolution stating "The very concept of a synod precludes individualism which allows every man to interpret synod's confessional position according to his own subjective preference."

Woman wins right to run gas station

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A woman cannot be barred from running a gasoline station because of her sex, the state Fair Employment Practices Commission ruled Monday.

The commission ruled that the U Save Automatic Corp., known as USA Gasoline, owes Yvonne J. Tudor $1,725 in lost wages and a chance to become a station manager.

Miss Tudor said she was an attendant at one of the company's 21 stations in Southern California and when a managerial position opened, she applied for it. She complained to the commission after she was told she could not be made manager because she is a woman. The complaint caused her to be fired, she charged.

The commission said that "opportunity to seek, obtain and hold employment without discrimination because of one's sex is recognized in this state as a civil right."

French force quits nuclear test atoll

PAPEETE, Tahiti (UPI) — French military forces reportedly evacuated a South Pacific atoll used for French nuclear tests Monday, the latest sign that Paris intends to go ahead with atomic explosions opposed by several other countries.

Naval and ground forces have been withdrawn from Mururoa atoll, located 900 miles southeast of Tahiti, before each explosion in the past.

Tahiti newspapers said today the first explosion might come Saturday, which is Bastille Day, the French national holiday commemorating the start of the 1789 revolution, or by July 20 on the latest.

France and China are the only two major countries that did not sign the treaty banning nuclear tests and both have carried out or announced plans for further atmospheric tests.

French authorities announced official warnings Saturday and Monday to shipping companies and airlines to stay clear of Mururoa from midnight Wednesday. In the past, an explosion follows 24 to 48 hours after the issuance of such warnings.

Aviation experts said the French might start the test series even before Saturday but official French sources gave no indication of Paris' plans.

However, reports from the test site said military officials in charge of the tests have not yet inflated the huge, yellow, pear-shaped balloon to which the nuclear device is fixed for testing.

Planes and ships from several countries were reported in the area, hoping to spy on the tests from international waters around Mururoa to determine the strength of each explosion and the advance of France's atomic research.

The tests angered Australia, located at its closest point 1,600 miles away from Mururoa, New Zealand, Japan and some South American countries.

Obituaries

Harry L. Good

MONTCLAIR — Harry L. Good of 9497 Del Mar Ave. died Monday at Doctors Hospital following a long illness.

Mr. Good was born Oct. 28, 1889, in Watson, Mo. He came to the Pomona Valley in 1909 from Colorado and had resided here since. He was an orange grower. He was a member of the Grace Brethren Church.

He is survived by his widow, Gladys; a son, Milford of Woodland; a daughter, Thais A. Good, who is a missionary in Africa; two grandsons, Paul and Mark; and three great-grandsons. Graveside services will be held Thursday at 10 a.m. in Pomona Cemetery with the Rev. Allen Herr of the Grace Brethren Church officiating.

Pollock Mortuary in Pomona is in charge of arrangements.

Miss Josie Horn

CLAREMONT — Miss Josie E. Horn of 635 Alden Road in Pilgrim Place died Sunday morning in the McCabe Rest Home following a long illness.

Miss Horn was born in Allen County, Ind., on Dec. 23, 1885, and moved to Oakdale, Iowa, in 1891. She was a graduate of LeRoy High School in 1905 and of Carleton College in 1911. She taught school before becoming a missionary for the American Board in China from 1915 to 1942. While she was in China during World War II, the school and mission were destroyed by bombings. She returned to America in an exchange of prisoners.

Miss Horn moved to Pilgrim Place from Austin, Minn., in 1956. She was a member of the United Church of Christ, Congregational.

Survivors include two sisters, Mrs. Stanley L. Myhaler of Santa Cruz, and Mrs. Meda Hale of LeRoy, Minn.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 11 a.m. in Todd Memorial Chapel Claremont, with Dr. Jesse F. Perin of Claremont officiating. Services will conclude in the chapel.

Friends may make memorial contributions to Pilgrim Place, 730 Plymouth Road, Claremont 91711.

Elizabeth Zajac

CLAREMONT — Mrs. Elizabeth M. Zajac of 23 Bonita Terrace died June 30 in Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

Mrs. Zajac was born in Spica Vlac, Czechoslovakia, on Sept. 17, 1903. She came to the United States when she was 17 and lived in Youngstown, Ohio. She moved to Fontana in 1946 and to Claremont in 1949. She was a member of Our Lady of the Assumption Catholic Church.

She is survived by a son, Jack of Rome, Italy, and two grandchildren, Aaron and Christian Zajac, also of Rome.

Rosary will be recited tonight at 7 in Todd Memorial Chapel Claremont. Requiem Mass will be celebrated Wednesday at 9:30 a.m. in Our Lady of the Assumption Catholic Church. Private burial will be made in Mt. View Cemetery, San Bernardino.

Jason L. Woodard

POMONA — Jason Lamont Woodard, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Corlis Woodard of 304 E. Olive St., died Sunday evening in Park Avenue Hospital a few hours after birth.

He is survived by his parents.

Private services were held with Todd Memorial Chapel Pomona in charge of arrangements.
